1,811 – –	- - -
11,000 – –	- - -	11,000 – –
6,170 – –	- - -	- - -	- - This is a new Shed on the site of an old one, with an additional Building, and for which a sum of 2,000 l. was voted last year, under Alterations and Re-constructions.
9,619 – –	- - -	- - -	Of this amount the sum of 2,000 l. is a Re-vote.
564 – –	- - -	23,875 – –
2,000 – –	- - -
900 – –	- - -
1,293 – –	- - -	- - -	- - Of this amount the sum of 602 l. is a Re-vote for re-constructing Tramroad on the south side of Inner Basin.

1,410 – –	- - -	1,410 – –
15,000 – –	32,000 – –	- - -	- - There is at present a wooden dilapidated Dock, with a good stone entrance; the re-construction is quite necessary, with reference to the requirements of the Establishment.
14,000 – –	- - -	- - - continued.	- - The increased length of Ships requires that this and Dock No. 2 should be extended.
5,000 – –	55,000 – –	- - -	- - This is a Re-vote, the Work having been suspended, pending the decision of the general requirements of the Yard.
8,000 – –	92,000 – –	- - -	- - These Works are urgently required, being a part of the general improvements; the exact cost cannot be accurately ascertained, as the Work will be chiefly executed by Convict Labour.

NOTE.—Of the Sailing Transports, eight have been paid off; fourteen wrecked; and one burnt. Of the Steam Vessels, one was wrecked.

Admiralty, 22 January 1855.

(signed) THOS. T. GRANT, Comptroller of Victualling Department.

In addition to the services enumerated in the foregoing Table, the Steam and Sailing Transports have been employed as Magazine, Naval and Commissariat store ships, and in conveying ammunition and stores from Gibraltar and Malta to the East.

In September the Transports embarked the Army at Varna for the Crimea, with their horses, artillery, stores and provisions.

Since the disembarkation of the Army they have been employed conveying stores, provisions, guns, ammunition and troops from Malta and Corfu, cattle from the coasts of the Black Sea, coals, charcoal and wood, provisions and other stores from Constantinople, embarking French cavalry from Varna and Bergos to the Crimea, Turkish troops from Varna to Eupatoria, conveying the sick and wounded to Scutari, and invalids from thence to Malta and England, and French troops, horses and stores from Marseilles, as enumerated in the above Table.

Sir W. J. HOOKER'S REPORT ON KEW GARDENS, &c.

Sir, Royal Gardens, Kew, 31 December 1854.

In presenting my Report on the Royal Gardens of Kew for the year now closed, I need not dwell much on the Botanic Garden as distinguished from the Pleasure Ground or Arboretum. Its progress has been detailed in former Reports. The arrangement of Walks, Lawns, Clumps, and Ornamental Flower Beds is, so far as regards general features, complete.

In novelties, rarities, and especially in useful Plants, we have received as many additions as in any former year, and equally numerous have been our donations to foreign Gardens and colonies. The former circumstance (our augmented collections) when taken in conjunction with the constantly increasing growth of the Plants, compels me to entreat for more accommodation to our Greenhouse Plants from temperate climates, and especially those of a large size, such as scarce tender Pines, and Australian trees and shrubs.

Nothing has occurred to lessen the number of visitors, or the interest shown by the public in the Gardens and Collections. As in former years, I submit a statement of the number of visitors annually, commencing with the first year of admission to the Gardens, viz.—

Years.	Visitors.
1842	11,400
1843	13,492
1844	16,114
1845	28,139
1846	46,573
1847	64,282
1848	91,708
1849	137,865
1850	179,627
1851 (the year of the Great Exhibition)	327,900
1852	231,210
1853	331,210
1854	339,164

It will thus be perceived that the numbers are steadily and constantly increasing. The great superiority in the year 1851 must be considered due to the influx of people to the Metropolis caused by the Great Exhibition, and that of 1853 to the Sunday admission. In the same proportion has increased the number of individuals who come for study and instruction, especially artists. To various Government Schools of Art and Design we continually send abundant supplies for the use of their pupils in London.

The Pleasure Ground adjacent to the Garden, and occupied during the last four years as an Arboretum, devoted to all kinds of foreign trees and shrubs that will bear our climate, while still keeping up its ornamental character, has its growing attractions. The rough ground, bordering on the Grand Walk, or Sion Vista, has, during 1854, been levelled and formed into lawn, and the planting is finished; and a large proportion of the trees and shrubs have been named, in conspicuous letters on iron tallies, with the genus and species in Latin and English, the name of the author who first described it, and the native country; thus rendering this collection of hardy trees and shrubs immediately available for the instruction of nurserymen, planters, &c.

The Museum of Practical or Economic Botany has prospered, and is a source of usefulness as well as gratification to our merchants and commercial men, as well as to scientific persons. Not a day passes but applicants come for information about the useful woods, oils, fibres, gums, resins, drugs, and dye-stuffs, of which the stores and greenhouses contain the living sources, and the Museum the products, all authentically named.

A new feature in connexion with the Royal Gardens remains to be noticed.

In all Continental and Government Botanic Gardens it is considered indispensable that an Herbarium and Botanical Library should be appended to them, for the benefit not only of the Garden itself, but of students and of all who desire information on the properties and commercial value, value, and on the correct names of the plants which are employed in trade, in the arts, in medicine, manufactures, and domestic economy, &c., &c. The largest Garden can never be sufficiently spacious to contain all the known serviceable plants in a living state, even if they could be procured. But a well-preserved Herbarium does, or should, contain dried flowering species of every known plant in the world. Again, in the Library we have figures, and descriptions, and historical notices of all plants ready for daily consultation. Thus an Herbarium and Library are essentially part and parcel of a Botanic Garden, and when combined with a Museum, leave nothing to be desired.

Till 1853 our Garden was utterly destitute of the two former appendages. During that year and the one now expired it has been my duty to report the presentation of two valuable Libraries and Herbaria. One was the gift of Miss Bromfield; it had belonged to her deceased brother, Dr. Bromfield, of the Isle of Wight; the other was bestowed on us by George Bentham, Esq., of London. Both were presented under condition that they should be available, under proper restrictions, for the public service, and both are safely deposited at Kew.

These presents, together with the entire private Herbarium and Library, the property of the Director, have been made available for public use, and are accommodated and conveniently arranged within the precincts of the Garden. This important arrangement was effected in the early part of the year now ended. The benefits of it have already been experienced by botanists, students, and persons of all grades who desire information about economic and other plants throughout Europe. Many have come to reside at Kew, for months at a time, with the sole purpose of study in the Herbarium, Library, and Museum, and among the living plants in the Gardens.

I must mention, among the more important contributions to the Library during 1854, a splendid collection of drawings, upwards of 1,000, given by Miss Cathcart, which had been made in India under the direction of her late brother, Major Cathcart; a set of 2,188 drawings of Kew plants, which had been prepared by the order of the late William Townshend Aiton, Esq. presented by William Attwell Smith, Esq.; and the entire botanical correspondence of the late Dr. Wallich, during his 28 years' superintendence of the Gardens at Calcutta, which that gentleman bequeathed to the Gardens.

Lastly, the country appreciates and acknowledges the services it has received from this establishment; the visitors of all grades (on two occasions exceeding 10,000 a duy) evince by their generally good conduct their thorough enjoyment of the place. Merchants, manufacturers, travellers, we may even include foreign potentates, testify to the same by their gifts of all kinds of plants, museum objects, and books to the library.

To our own colonies our books show that we have contributed extensively, by the dispersion of useful plants and trees, in climates suited to their growth, wherever our trade and commerce reach.

I have, &c.

(signed) W. J. Hooker,
Director.

To the Right Honourable Sir William Molesworth, Bart., M. P.,
First Commissioner of Her Majesty's Works and Public Buildings.

Sir, Plymouth, 14 February 1855.

In compliance with the authority of the Commissioners of Her Majesty's Works and Public Buildings, conveyed to me by Sir Charles Barry, I beg to acquaint you, that I have, with his assistance, most carefully examined the New Palace at Westminster, with a view to determine upon the best mode of rendering it secure from the destructive effects of lightning, and I have now to lay before you the following Report on the subject:

The large superficial extent of the roofs of the buildings of the Palace at Westminster, necessarily expose these buildings to a serious amount of induced electrical change during thunderstorms; so that heavy explosive discharges of lightning would be likely to fall on them, and cause, probably, considerable damage.

The verification of Franklin so long since as the year 1752, of the identity of the agency of lightning with that of common electricity, led to the application of pointed metallic rods to the walls of buildings, termed "Lightning Rods," the object being to transmit to the earth, with safety to the general structure, any discharge of atmospheric electricity to which the edifice might be subject; and it was for a long time imagined that such a rod could attract to itself the matter of lightning. This hypothetical assumption gave rise, as is well known, to much violent philosophical controversy relative to the amount of safety which such pointed rods could ensure, as compared with the amount of lightning, which, by their supposed attractive influence, might be drawn down upon the buildings.

A most extensive induction of facts, however, and a large generalization, particularly during the last quarter of a century, in the application of metallic conductors as a means of security from lightning, which has been carried out on a very extensive scale, especially in ships and vessels of Her Majesty's Navy, has fully shown the great fallacy of such an assumption, and has proved that metallic substances have not exclusively in themselves any more attractive influence for the agency of lightning than other kinds of common matter; that in order to effectually secure buildings against the destructive action of the electrical discharge, something more is requisite than the application of a small rod, or wire of metal to a given portion of the building, under the form of a lightning rod; which, by confining and restraining the electrical discharge within a very narrow limit, does not admit of that unlimited room for expansion, and free dispersion of the electrical action in all directions, which perfect security demands. Besides, the application of an ordinary lightning rod is of a very partial character, it has small electrical capacity, and is hence very often knocked in pieces by heavy discharges of lightning, of which we have numerous examples. I may quote, for example, the case of a large and very important building at Paris, "L'Hôtel des Invalides;" this building had a small lightning conductor (paratonnerre) partly made up of twisted wires. It was struck by lightning in June 1839, the conductor was knocked in pieces, and the building much damaged. (See "Comptes Rendus," for June 1839.)—Shaugh Church, near Plymouth, had a small conductor of iron rod. The conductor, as is common with such kinds of lightning rods, had fallen into some decay; the church was in consequence severely shaken and damaged by a heavy stroke of lightning, which fell on it on the 24*th February* 1823. Charles Church at Plymouth was struck by lightning in December 1824; a conductor of brass wire, partially applied to the steeple, was literally torn in pieces, and some damage occurred at the base of the tower.

It will be seen by an official report in the Philosophical Transactions for 1778, page 234, that the Board House at Purfleet was struck by lightning, 15 May 1777, and damage ensued; the discharge fell on a point of the building, 47 feet from the small lightning conductor, with which the building was furnished; about 150 yards distant were five powder magazines.

The Poor House at Heckingham was struck by lightning in June 1781, and set on fire; the discharge came in three forked streams, one fell on a point of the building, about 70 feet from the small conductors, on the chimnies, one fell on one of the conductors and was carried off, a third fell on the ground at a short distance from the building. This is also reported in the Transactions of the Royal Society for 1782.

A house at Tenterdon was struck by lightning on a chimney, about 45 feet from an iron bar attached as a conductor to the opposite end of the building. Considerable damage ensued, the discharge finally concentrated itself on the iron bar by conduction round the metals of the roof, uniting with another portion of the discharge which fell on the conductor. In passing out of the lead into the iron, it rent the pipe.—(See Philosophical Transactions for 1775, page 336.)

In June 1854, Ealing Church was struck by lightning; the small conductor attached to the tower was partially fused, and damage ensued.

In July 1854, another church at Astbury was struck by lightning. In this case also the small conductor was fused in several places, the discharge divided upon the body of the church; it displaced and knocked in pieces several stones, and did other damage.

In Her Majesty's Navy conductors of this description have been repeatedly knocked in pieces by lightning, and partially melted, sometimes without, but sometimes with, material damage to the vessel. Her Majesty's sloop "Hazard," was twice struck by lightning in the year 1846, once at Sumatra in May, and again at Cape Sarawak, Borneo, in the month of June following. In both cases, as appears by the ship's log, the electrical discharge divided itself between the conductor and the masts. The conductor was, in both instances, twisted in pieces, and partially destroyed; in the second case, the maintopmast was shattered, part of it fell on the deck, and stove it in. As late as August last, lightning fell on "Le Jupiter," a French line of battle ship, in the Black Sea; the small conductor on the mast was knocked in pieces, and some men hurt on deck. At the same time a Turkish brig, lying near, was also struck; her small electric conducting chain was destroyed, and a hole struck through her side.—(See "Comptes Rendus" for 18th of December 1854, No. 25, Report "à L'Academie des Sciences.")

To secure effectually, then, such a building as the New Palace at Westminster against lightning, I consider it requisite to complete the general conductability of the whole mass, and so bring it into that passive or non-resisting state, which it would assume in respect of the electrical discharge, supposing the whole were a complete mass of metal; by which means a discharge of lightning in striking upon any given point of the building, would have, through the instrumentality of capacious electrical conductors, unlimited room for expansion, upon the surface of the earth, in all directions; to which, by a law of nature the discharge is determined. In fact, what is called lightning is the evidence of some occult power of nature, forcing a path through substances which offer greater or less resistance to its progress; such, for example, amongst the former as atmospheric air, vitreous and resinous bodies, dry vegetable substances, and such like. In the case of such bodies, a powerful evolution of light and heat attends its course; together with irresistible expansive and disruptive force, by which the most solid and compact structures are rent asunder; whereas in finding a path through substances which offer but comparatively little resistance to its course, this explosive form of action, which we term lightning, becomes transformed into a harmless and unseen current; hence the great protective influence of a capacious and general system of conduction, such as I have just adverted to, which does not restrict the discharge to a given partial and narrow path, but is so circumstanced that lightning striking anywhere upon buildings cannot enter upon any circuit, of which the large capacious lines of conduction do not form a part.

Such are the views and principles upon which I venture to recommend the following system of metallic conductors to be applied and carried out in the great mass of the buildings constituting the New Palace at Westminster; and which I feel assured, from a large amount of experience, will effectually secure those buildings from the destructive effects of lightning, both for the present and for all future time.

I here take occasion to observe, that the general surface of the roofs, being iron, coated with zinc, and connected with the earth by water pipes of the same material in very many places, fulfils, to a great extent, one of the important conditions of the general conduction required; and so far I am in full accordance with an opinion expressed by Sir Charles Barry, that we have already in our hands an available and large amount of security; thus, the general mass of the roofing may be deemed as being virtually a portion of the earth's surface, electrically considered. It is only necessary, therefore, to provide for the several portions of the building above the general level of the roofs, and make up by capacious conductors of copper, for the comparatively low conducting power of the roofs, and the cast-iron pipes which connect them with the earth.

The first and very important portion of the New Palace which claims attention, is the light and graceful tower in the centre of the building, which rises to the height of at least 150 feet above the roofs of the buildings generally.

It may not be here out of place to call attention to what has really happened within a few years to other similar buildings.

The elegant and elevated spire of Christ Church, at Doncaster, was struck by lightning in November 1836. The "Times" newspaper of the 7th of that month thus describes the damage done: "The appearance of the broken spire, one-third of which is gone, the shattered portions of the tower, broken canopies, and shattered pinnacles and battlements, the accumulation of ruins on the outside, and within the edifice, are truly lamentable, and awakened the deep regret of all persons assembled."

It is worthy of remark, that a ball of glass had been placed on this spire, under the notion of the glass being a repeller of lightning.

The beautiful modern church of St. George, at Leicester, was struck by lightning in August 1846; the spire was totally ruined; the roof of the church broken in, its fine organ partly destroyed; the ruins and fragments covered the ground beneath.

The spire of a modern church, St. Michael's, at Cork, was completely overthrown by lightning in January 1836, and one side of the remaining tower fairly torn out in a tremendous rent.

Very many such cases are on record in our own time, and they all demonstrate unmistakably, the terrible action of lightning upon unprotected buildings. It may be anticipated, therefore, that what has happened to the edifices to which I have alluded, may, and would probably, happen to the great Central Tower of the Palace at Westminster under similar atmospheric action; and should such a lamentable occurrence ensue, the terrible consequences may well be conceived, owing to the situation of that tower being immediately above the central hall of the building. I should therefore recommend that a capacious metallic conductor of copper tube, two inches diameter, and not less than one-eighth of an inch in thickness, be fixed within the upper portion of the tower, in its south-west angle, from the large copper terminal which surmounts it, to the level of the roofs of the buildings generally. That the tubing should be secured effectually at the joints over solid screw plugs and coupling pieces, and be secured to the masonry by efficient metallic staples or other fixings. At the junction of the tower with the roofs of the building, I should recommend this copper tubing, after being well connected with the metals of the roof, to be continued externally in as straight a course as possible to the earth, in which it should terminate by one or two projecting branches of solid copper rod. The soil in which the branches terminate should be made up, so far as possible, of carbonized matter. I think it more safe and satisfactory to continue the copper conductor as a whole into the earth, rather than terminate it in the metals of the roof, because the electrical discharge would have a line of the same conducting material throughout, and would not have to leave a metal of high conducting power to pass upon one of inferior power, but which latter may still be important in its auxiliary operation.

The next most important portions of the building which require special protection are the Victoria Tower and the Clock Tower. These towers, which are proposed to be carried to a height of above 300 feet from the ground, would necessarily be much exposed to the electrical discharge; I would therefore recommend that throughout the entire height of them should be fixed a copper band of conduction, similarly constructed to the conductors applied in the vessels of the Royal Navy, five inches wide and 3-16ths of an inch thick, to be fixed and secured to the walls. This band should be properly connected with the metal bodies of the roofs generally, and also with the metal rail of the staircase within each tower.

The North and South Towers in the centre portion of the river front will also require special protection. They have each four elevated turrets, with vanes and vane rods. To protect effectually these towers, it will be desirable to attach bands of sheet copper from the vanes to the roofing beneath; these bands may be about three inches wide and 3-16ths of an inch thick; from the termination of these conductors in the metals of the roof of the tower, I should recommend an independent line of conduction of the same metal, to be fixed within one of the turrets and continued to the earth. This line of conduction may consist of copper tubing of 1 ½ inches in diameter and one-eighth of an inch in thickness, to be applied in the way recommended for the Central Tower.

The North and South Wing Towers of the river front should be treated in a similar manner to those just described.

Another most important point for consideration, is the Ventilating Shaft of the House of Commons. A coke fire is here generally in operation, the result of which is to create an ascending rarified column of warm air, which reaching or extending probably in its effects to a considerable elevation, might determine the course of a stroke of lightning in that direction. To guard against damage in such a case, I should recommend that a tubular conductor, of the kind last described, should be fixed on the east side of the shaft, and be connected with the metals of the roof.

The ornamental turrets, pinnacles, &c. of St. Stephen's Porch should be protected by small bands of sheet copper, two inches wide and one-eighth of an inch thick, neatly attached to them, and placed in connexion with the metals of the roof below; and all other turrets and pinnacles throughout the building should be similarly treated.

Such are the principal features which have presented themselves in the course of my survey of the several parts of the Palace at Westminster, with a view to guarding it effectually against the destructive effects of lightning; and in drawing up this Report I have endeavoured to assign the grounds of the several conducting lines which I recommend in a way as simple and intelligible as possible, so that there may be no mistake on the subject. I feel that a question of such magnitude involves a serious responsibility, and must not be lightly treated. What I have recommended has been the result of very serious and attentive deliberation, and I conscientiously think that what I have proposed is absolutely requisite to a permanent and satisfactory security of the building against the destructive agency of lightning.

I am aware that my system will be necessarily somewhat costly in its details, as compared with the more common method of lightning rods or chains, which in numerous instances, to some of which I have already alluded, were found to be inefficient; and I venture respectfully to submit, that after all the expenditure incurred upon the New Palace at Westminster, a few hundred pounds would be wisely appropriated for insuring its safety against one of the most terribly destructive elements of nature, which might at any moment lay portions of it in ruins, and perhaps be destructive of life.

I have, &c.

Sir, Admiralty, 15 January 1855.

I AM commanded by my Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty to transmit to you the accompanying draft contract containing the terms on which it is proposed to offer to Messrs. Rigby, the present contractors, the execution of the new harbour works at Holyhead, embracing the extension of the north pier, construction of the pier-head, and of the superstructure to the extent of 2,500 feet; the works at the eastern breakwater to be suspended, and the packet harbour, as originally contemplated, to be abandoned. And I am to request you will lay the same before the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury for their consideration and approval.

I am, &c.

To the Secretary of the Treasury, &c. &c. &c. (signed) W. A. B. Hamilton.

(B.)

COPY of TREASURY MINUTE, dated 16 January 1855.

WRITE to the Secretary of the Admiralty in reference to this letter, that my Lords a unable to express any opinion of approval, or otherwise, with regard to the extensive alterations in the plans for Holyhead Harbour, already sanctioned by this Board, and submitted to Parliament, until they have before them a clear and full statement of the grounds and reasons upon which it has been deemed desirable to depart from the plans already sanctioned, and adopt new ones, involving so great a change. Upon receiving the necessary report on these points, my Lords will be prepared to give the subject their early attention.

(C.)

Sir, Admiralty, 24 January 1855.

IN reply to your letter of the 16th instant, signifying the request of the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury to be furnished with a statement of the grounds on which it is deemed desirable to depart from the plans already sanctioned for the harbour at Holyhead, and to adopt the alterations proposed in the draft contract submitted for approval on the 15th instant, I am commanded by my Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty to request you will state to the Lords of the Treasury, that when the present plan of harbour was determined on in the year 1845, it was considered that all public requirements would be satisfied by providing a complete packet station for Ireland, and a refuge for vessels caught off the Anglesea coast in north-west gales; and for these objects it was then considered amply sufficient; indeed it became a question with the Board of Admiralty whether a harbour of such capacity was not unnecessarily large, and whether a preference ought not to be given to one of the many plans of smaller harbours then before them.

The idea, however, of constructing a harbour of less dimensions was abandoned, and it was ultimately decided to adopt the present plan, and divide the harbour into two, one for the packets, and the other as a port of refuge.

The works accordingly were proceeded with on this design; but such portions only were commenced as would leave it hereafter in the power of Government either to diminish, extend, or alter the dimensions or form of the harbour, as experience obtained in the progress of the works might show to be necessary or advantageous; and the results of this course have already demonstrated the wisdom of having postponed the construction of the packet harbour, as well as of the eastern arm, both of which were originally intended to have been carried out simultaneously with the western and northern breakwater.

In the early part of last year the attention of their Lordships was called to the unexpected increase in the number of vessels that had made use of the harbour during the winter months, and on inquiry it was apparent, from the greatly increased number resorting for shelter as the works advanced and afforded a secure anchorage, that instead of the harbour being needlessly large, its capacity would not prove adequate to meet the requirements of the shipping interest, and the increasing commerce on that part of the coast; it therefore became a matter of the first importance that so great a national work should not be found inadequate to fulfil the objects for which so great an outlay was undertaken, at a time when the means of extension were impossible, and their Lordships therefore proceeded immediately to Holyhead, and with the superintending engineer and the harbour-master maturely considered on the spot what course it would be most advisable for the public interests to adopt, whilst the works were in a state to admit of modification and alteration.

The accompanying report from Mr. Rendel contains a full statement of the plans which were then brought under consideration, and all parties were unanimously agreed that the most eligible course would be to continue the projection of the northern breakwater in a north-east a north-east direction about 2,000 feet, by which an additional area of about 300 acres would be sheltered, a readier means of ingress and egress would be afforded, and at the same time the construction of the packet pier might be entirely dispensed with, and the eastern arm probably abandoned, or, at any rate, deferred for some years.

My Lords had, therefore, no hesitation in deciding on this alteration, as the annual expenditure would not thereby be necessarily increased; and bearing in mind that in the construction of a refuge harbour sufficient accommodation to meet the probable requirements of trade is not a less essential condition for such a work than ready access at all times of tide, and during all weathers, it appears to them the only means to be adopted, whereby the question which alone remains problematical, viz., sufficiency of accommodation, might be left, without detriment to the efficiency of the harbour, to be solved by the results of experience.

My Lords have thus cursorily stated the chief grounds on which they consider that the original design of the works should be modified and altered; and the draft contract embraces the terms on which they propose to offer to the present contractors to abandon certain portions of their existing contract, and the conditions on which they are prepared to enter into an arrangement with them for the prosecution of the intended works; but in the event of these parties declining to accede to the terms offered, my Lords then propose to submit the whole to public competition.

I am, &c.

P. S.—I am desired to enclose Captain Skinner's reports of 2d February 1854 and 22 January 1855.

C—(1.)

Sir, 8, Great George-street, Westminster, 4 May 1854.

When in 1845 the Government decided on adopting the plans on which the new Harbour of Holyhead is now in course of construction, it was considered that all public requirements would be satisfied by its affording a complete packet station for Ireland, and a refuge for vessels caught off the Anglesea coast in north-west gales, which, during the winter months, are so frequent and destructive on this part of the Welsh shores.

These limited views naturally raised the question with the then Board of Admiralty whether the harbour now constructing would not prove unnecessarily large, and consequently whether one of the numerous designs at the same time before the Board for one much smaller should not have the preference.

Ultimately the idea of a small harbour in a more confined site was abandoned; but not until it was decided to divide the large plan into two harbours, the one for the packet service, the other for refuge.

This change in the original plan, as furnished to Government with my report of the 5th December 1845, gave rise to what was then called, and is now described in the Parliamentary plans, and in the contract with Messrs. Rigby, as the "Packet Pier." I have always, however, considered it desirable to delay its construction until the progress made with the works of the original design had developed the use which shipping would make of the Harbour for Refuge, and until it was seen whether the demand upon it as a packet station would be limited to the Irish boats.

This delay, desirable also in an engineering point of view, and sanctioned by successive Boards of Admiralty, has proved fortunate; for not only would the packet pier, if constructed, have curtailed the extent of the anchorage, which has proved so valuable during the past winter, but now that it is proposed to make Holyhead the port of call for the American mail boats, the pier, as well as that portion of the harbour which it enclosed for the use of the packet service, would be ill-adapted to vessels of so large a class.

Nor, looking to the experience gained as to the use made of the harbour during the last three years, is it less a subject for congratulation that the site selected for it, as well as the arrangement of the design, affords the means of its extension.

The letters from Commander Skinner, R. N., the harbour-master, to their Lordships, of the 2d and 7th of February last, show that the harbour is already frequently filled by wind-bound vessels, and that the growth of the numbers resorting to it under such circumstances is so rapid as to threaten its almost uselessness for its original purposes.

How to satisfy this new, and to most persons unexpected want, without impairing the efficiency of the harbour for the other demands upon it, is the question which I understand their Lordships have referred to me.

It appears from Commander Skinner's letter to their Lordships of the 2d February, that during the last winter as many as 95 wind-bound vessels were at anchor at one time in the harbour; and he says on the subject, "I think it my duty to state for their Lordships' information, that if any serious complaint is made against the harbour it will be for deficiency of space, and as the time has not gone by for remedying the want, I have ventured to address their Lordships on the subject." And again he suggests, "As the western breakwater is now approaching its intended termination, whether it is not a matter for consideration, the extending of it 600 or 700 yards further, and thus securing sufficient space for shipping."

Since their Lordships referred the harbour-master's letter to me I have been to Holyhead, and have had a full discussion of the whole subject with him, and have considered with great care the extent to, and plan on which, the harbour should be enlarged; and I now beg to lay before the Board the result, as shown in this report and the accompanying plans.*

In each of these plans the north breakwater is proposed to be extended beyond the present contract 2,000 feet in a north-east direction. This extension will shelter upwards of 300 acres of Holyhead Bay from all points to which it is now exposed, so as to make that area a perfectly sheltered roadstead. Of this space one half, or 150 acres, have a depth of from seven to five fathoms, and 100 acres more of from five to three fathoms, all excellent holding ground.

From the end of the north breakwater when thus extended, Carmel Point (the north-east headland of Holyhead Bay) would bear N.N.E. true, whilst no portion of the east coast of the bay south of Porthwan Point would be more than 2 ¼ miles distant.

This roadstead, perfect as regards shelter, would also be easy of access in all winds; the distance between the head of the breakwater and the Clipera Rocks being more than one mile, with a depth of eight fathoms for the western half of the width, the remainder gradually shoaling to 4 ¼ fathoms. This will form the entrance to the roadstead, the aspect being north.

Now, although the sheltered anchorage will be to the west, or windward of the entrance, a glance at the general chart of the bay which accompanies this report will show that as the deep water within extends upwards of one mile south, and expands 1 ½ miles east and west, vessels even in southerly gales could enter freely, and select their position for anchoring under the shelter of the proposed extension of the breakwater, whilst vessels wanting to go to sea in easterly winds could do so with ease and safety.

The proposal, therefore, to extend the north breakwater 2,000 feet, provided it be in a N. E. direction, seems a judicious mode of giving accommodation to wind-bound ships, which, if such shelter be not made, will continue to run into the new harbour, and so by crowding it make it unfit to fulfil the objects for which it was originally designed.

The proposal of Commander Skinner was, that this extension of the north breakwater should be in continuation of its present line; but this would in my opinion unnecessarily increase the difficulty of vessels in entering the harbour in westerly, and in leaving it in easterly winds; and it is to avoid this that in the plans accompanying the present report I have shown the extension inclining outwards, that is, N. E. from the present line of breakwater, at an angle of 45 degrees.

To make the entrance to the new harbour still more easy in westerly winds, as well as to facilitate the departure of vessels in easterly, the propriety of abandoning the eastern breakwater has been suggested.

Plan No. 1, shows this arrangement. There would then be a southern or landward passage 700 feet wide, whilst the width of the northern would be 850 feet. The submerged clusters of rocks, coloured purple, would, however, have to be removed to such a depth as would give a minimum of four fathoms at low water upon them.

The objection to this plan is, that it would lay the new harbour open to the whole breadth of the bay in easterly winds, which, though limited to a fetch of two miles, and therefore insufficient to affect vessels at anchor, would be injurious to the packets and other vessels, whilst lying at the quays. As, therefore, its adoption would involve the loss of the eastern breakwater, so advantageously placed, as well for the purposes of shelter as for another deep water wharf, with most convenient coal stores, all in connexion with the Government yard on Salt Island, and in close proximity to the Chester and Holyhead Railway, I am not prepared to recommend its adoption unless in the progress of the extension of the north breakwater it should be found advisable for the sake of easy access or egress to what would then be the inner harbour.

I have, therefore, to recommend the adoption for the present of plan No. 2, which shows the extension of the north breakwater as described before; the east breakwater remaining as in the original plan. Its construction, however, I should propose to delay until we have experience to guide us as to the effect of the extension upon the approach to the harbour.

I should add, as a further reason for delaying any decision upon this point, that the masking of a part of the "Platters" by an island, and the removal of the rest, will be a far more costly work than the construction of the eastern breakwater as at present designed.

The

* It has not been considered necessary to print the plans referred to in this correspondence.

The cost of the extension of the north breakwater would be, as I estimate it, after the rate of 125 l. per foot run for the rough deposits, allowing the contractor, should he demand it, a fair increase on his present prices, to cover the increased distance to which the stone would have to be carried, and the greater cost of labour and materials.

I have before explained the origin of the packet pier, and I must now ask their Lordships' attention to the reasons for abandoning it.

The increased anchorage ground afforded by the extension of the north breakwater in the manner proposed, will effect a separation of the packets from the general mass of shipping, far better than would have been done by the pier, the place of which may be most effectually supplied by quays on the eastern and western sides of the harbour. Further, the packet harbour which it enclosed would be too small, and otherwise unsuitable to the American mail boats, even of the present day; it would interfere with the working of vessels in and out of harbour should the eastern breakwater be constructed, whilst if that work be omitted, it would be wholly inadmissible. Lastly, the Chester and Holyhead Railway Company are relieved by the Government from the contribution of 200,000 l. to the cost of the harbour which they were to make for the right to use this pier.

The only difficulty, if it can be so named, in the way of abandoning the pier is, that it forms a portion of the works now under contract to Messrs. Rigby, and has already been the subject of claims by them on account of loss of profits that would have accrued from its construction.

These claims, however, as well as others far less tenable, made by the contractors, would, I apprehend, be easily disposed of if the north breakwater should be extended as now proposed, and the erection of the superstructure, on that part already raised to the required level, be commenced. In that case they would of course be treated with for these new contracts on the condition that they waived all such claims.

As the north breakwater under the present contract is advanced to within a few months of completion, and the contractors are calling on me to furnish them with drawings for the building of its head, as also to give them instructions for going on with the works of the eastern breakwater and packet pier, it becomes absolutely necessary that their Lordships should give me directions on the following points, so as to prevent the embarrassment and loss which the further progress of the existing contract plans would involve, if any alterations are to be made; and also any claims of the contractors for compensation, should a stoppage of the works be necessary whilst arrangements for the alteration are making.

First. Whether the north breakwater is to be extended as shown on the accompanying designs, or whether I am to furnish Messrs. Rigby with the necessary drawings for completing it as limited by the present contract.

Second. Whether in the event of the extension being decided on, I am at liberty to obtain from Messrs. Rigby a tender for it, for early submission to their Lordships.

Third. Whether in the event of such tender being in my judgment unsatisfactory, or of Messrs. Rigby's refusal to merge in such an extension of the works now under contract to them, all claims for profit on abandoned works or otherwise, I am at liberty to invite tenders from other responsible contractors.

Fourth. Whether as a means of determining beyond doubt the total cost of the works, I should at the same time as I invite tenders for the proposed extension, also invite tenders for the building of the permanent superstructure, seeing that the stone deposits of a considerable portion of the breakwater are now sufficiently consolidated to receive it, and even require it for protection to the vessels lying within it, and that such superstructure will diminish the cost of the temporary railways, and otherwise facilitate the proposed extension.

Fifth. Whether their Lordships concur in the opinion which I have expressed, that no decision should yet be come to as respects the abandonment of the eastern breakwater, and the substitution of plan No. 1 for plan No. 2; and,

Sixthly. Whether it is their Lordships' wish that the packet pier should be at once abandoned.

I have only further to ask their Lordships to call for the report of the harbour-master as to the most effectual mode of guarding vessels entering the new harbour from the danger of the Platter Rocks pending their removal, or the construction of the eastern breakwater, a matter requiring prompt attention. I would also ask that his attention should be directed to the desirability of placing a beacon, or other equally good mark, on a rock forming the northern extremity of a small ridge which extends from the creosote works into the harbour, and which when the harbour contains so much shipping as it did in February last, might become dangerous to small vessels hugging the shore on entering or leaving. The resident engineer, Mr. Dobson, has marks for this rock, and will furnish them to the harbour-master.

I have, &c.

RESPECTING MOORINGS, AND EXTENSION OF NEW HARBOUR AT HOLYHEAD.

Sir, Holyhead, 2 February 1854.

OWING to the great increase of shipping which has taken refuge in the new harbour here during the last month, as compared with January 1853, and shown in the margin of my letter, I have been led to consider carefully what may be, or indeed I may say what will be, required of this harbour as one of refuge for the trade of the Channel; and I think it my duty to state, for their Lordships' information, that if any serious complaint is made against the harbour, I feel convinced that it will be for deficiency of space; and as the time is not yet gone by for remedying this anticipated want, I have ventured to address their Lordships on the subject.

Month of January 1853:

	Number of Vessels.	Tonnage.
Home Trade - -	77	7,294
Foreign Trade -	13	1,781
TOTAL - -	90	9,075

Month of January 1854:

	Number of Vessels.	Tonnage.
Home Trade - -	183	12,873
Foreign Trade -	32	10,524
TOTAL - -	215	23,397

At one period in the past month 95 vessels were anchored at the same time in the harbour, all of which were obliged to give the ground-chain of the present moorings a wide berth. These moorings occupy one of the best spots in the harbour. Those intended to be laid down will do the same, and consequently a still greater space rendered useless as far as the trade is concerned. Many complaints have been made by the masters of vessels about their anchors getting hooked on the chain; at the same time the advantages of the harbour are becoming widely known and appreciated, and from all I hear, I feel certain that the year will show an immense increase to the number of vessels sheltering here.

My own opinion, which I beg respectfully to submit to their Lordships, is, I think it is not expedient to lay down more moorings; that the present ones will answer sufficiently for the American mail packets. Should two packets be here at the same time, one can lie at her anchor.

Also that, as the western breakwater is now approaching its intended termination, whether it is not a matter for consideration, the extending of it 600 or 700 yards further, and thus securing sufficient space for shipping. The Platters rocks to be either blasted away or built over, and the eastern pier not extended to its contemplated end, but to stop short, and leave an entrance on the south side of the Platters.

I do hope that I am not stepping beyond what may be considered my duty in thus stating my opinion to their Lordships; but in truth, as harbour-master for the new harbour by their Lordships' appointment, I do not well see how I could avoid it.

I have, &c.
(signed) A. W. G. Skinner,
Commander.

The Secretary of the Admiralty.

C. (3.)

Sir, Holyhead, 22 January 1855.

As directed by your letter of the 20th instant, I herewith enclose, for the information of the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty, a return of the number of vessels, and their tonnage, that have made use of the new harbour here during the year 1853 and 1854, and up to the present date.

I have given the return of each month, marking the winter months in red ink (italics), as winter months are not always a criterion to judge by. The last month, for instance, being so stormy and unsettled that the coasting trade very generally remained in their ports.

I have also to add, in obedience to their Lordships' commands, that my opinion, as expressed in my letter, No. 38, of the 2d February last, as to the expediency of extending the area of the new harbour, is not changed, but more confirmed, and that all the arrangements that may be projected for making that harbour a place of trade require the most careful consideration, else they will seriously interfere with its properties as a harbour of refuge.

I have, &c.
(signed) A. W. Skinner,
Commander.

The Secretary of the Admiralty,

COPY of a TREASURY MINUTE, dated 26 January 1855.

WRITE to the Secretary of the Admiralty that my Lords have carefully considered the explanations now afforded of the proposed alterations in the plans already sanctioned for the Harbour of Holyhead.

State that my Lords entirely concur with the Lords of the Admiralty in the importance of making the change called for by the increased requirements of the shipping, before the works have progressed too far to admit of their being satisfactorily extended; and they consider the arguments adduced by Mr. Rendel, and by the harbour-master at Holyhead, conclusive as to the necessity for extending the area of shelter.

The only point which requires elucidation, and which my Lords have been unable to ascertain from these papers, is, whether the aggregate estimate for the entire work, which has been long ago submitted to, and sanctioned by, Parliament, will be very materially exceeded; and their Lordships would suggest to the Lords of the Admiralty the propriety of immediately calling upon Mr. Rendel to furnish a distinct statement on this point, and to prepare such a form of estimate, to be submitted to the House of Commons in the present Session, as will show precisely how the matter stands at present, and what are likely to be the requirements for this service in future years.

With this understanding, my Lords are pleased to give their sanction to the proposed alteration of the contract with Messrs. Rigby, in accordance with the draft submitted in the Admiralty letter of 15th instant.

(a) The Sewage from the Vice-Regal Residences was conveyed in an open drain to the Lower Pond in front of the Zoological Gardens. The new arrangement admits of the Sewage being discharged by a covered drain into the River, through the Hospital Sewer, a great nuisance being thereby abated.

(b) The supply of Water to the Vice-Regal Residences and the Royal Hibernian Military School has, in very dry seasons, been defective, and the deficiency has been more apparent since the general drainage of the Park by the Commissioners of Woods. It is with a view to increase the supply that this sum is inserted.

(c) The Estimate for the Royal Hospital this year includes the cost of Furniture and Utensils for the Pensioners, Plate and Linen for the Master, and Kitchen Utensils for the Deputy Master, heretofore voted in the Estimates of the Secretary-at-War.

(d) This Estimate is increased by the new Dormitory (the sleeping accommodation being limited for the number of boys) and providing Apartments and Furniture for the Schoolmaster, and for improving the condition of the Hospital, &c. on the requisition of the Board of Governors.

* In consequence of the First Commissioner of Works having ceased to hold the office of President of the Board of Health, provision has been made in this year's Estimate for the full Salary (£. 300) of his Private Secretary, from the 11 August 1854, prior to which date a moiety thereof was provided for in the Estimate for the General Board of Health.

† Bookkeeper and Architectural Assistant. The diminution in the Charge arises from provision having been made last year for an Arrear of salary

‡ Junior Examiners. The Salaries of three Examiners were inadvertently omitted in the Estimates last year.

Memorandum.—Under the Act 57 Geo. 3, c. 34, and subsequent Acts, during the years 1817 to 1842, the Loans were advanced in Exchequer Bills, and the Money for the Expenses of the Establishment was obtained from the Treasury as required from time to time, in compliance with Request Notes, signed by three of the Commissioners.

By the Act 5 Vict., Sess. 2, c. 9 (1842), it was enacted that the Loans should be advanced in money, instead of Exchequer Bills; and by that and subsequent Acts, a sum of 300,000 l. per Annum was placed for that purpose to the credit of this Board, in account with the National Debt Commissioners; and the money for the Expenses of the Establishment has been obtained from those Commissioners out of that 300,000 l. per annum, in compliance with Quarterly Certificates, signed by three of the Commissioners.

The above Estimate is not an additional charge. The Expenses of the Establishment having, since 1842, been defrayed from the 300,000 l. advanced annually under the Act 5 Vict., Sess. 2, c. 9, it is now proposed to diminish the Amount of 300,000 l. so advanced, by the Sum voted for the Establishment.

EXPLANATIONS relating to the ESTIMATE of the COMMISSIONERS of NATIONAL EDUCATION in IRELAND, for the year ending 31st March 1856.

(A.)—Female Training Establishment.

THE Commissioners have found it necessary to make an addition of 250 l. towards the maintenance of the teachers in training, on account of the very high price of provisions.

(B.)—Central Model Schools.

An additional teacher of drawing having been appointed, and the number of the pupils largely increased, the small augmentation under this head will be required towards defraying the salary of the teacher, and the purchase of apparatus, &c.

(C.)—Albert Agricultural Training Establishment.

The Commissioners propose to add the sum of 2,000 l. towards the cost of keeping up the establishment, and which amount will be required for the following purposes:—

One thousand pounds towards the erection of a range of hothouses for the rearing of fruits, plants, &c. Many of the agricultural pupils trained at this department are prepared for becoming land stewards.

And the Commissioners, after full consideration, have concurred in the opinion of their agricultural inspector and superintendent, that it is essential that the pupils should be instructed in the course of thorough practical gardening in all its branches, in order that they may be qualified to act in the twofold capacity of land steward and gardener.

The Commissioners have entered into a contract for the proposed buildings.

On the recommendation of the agricultural inspector, the Commissioners deem it advisable that a collection of objects, such as minerals, stones, soils, &c., should be formed, not only to illustrate the lectures appertaining thereto, but to model the nucleus of what would afterwards be made a complete agricultural museum. To carry out this undertaking, cases, fittings, &c., will have to be provided as specimens are collected by purchase or contribution.

The Commissioners also intend to attach to this establishment a suitable and commodious slaughter-house; the object of which is to instruct the pupils in the curing, &c., of meat, not only for their own consumption, but also for that of the other training establishments under the Board.

The Commissioners having exhausted the funds placed at their disposal for the building of the Albert Agricultural Training Establishment, which is now complete, with the exception of a convenient residence for a gatekeeper, and for the erection of which an additional amount will be required.

For the three latter purposes, it is considered that the sum of 1,000 l., or thereabouts, will be needed at present.

(D.)—Agricultural Schools.

There is a reduction in the present year's estimate to the amount of 1,000 l., under the head of "Building and repairing;" but that amount will be appropriated to the maintenance, &c., of these schools, consequent upon the addition to the number of these schools in operation, and the increased expenditure for the boarding of pupils as in the Central Training Departments.

The appointment of an additional agricultural sub-inspector has been rendered necessary, not only from the increased duties to be performed in superintending this class of schools but from the demands upon the time of the principal agricultural inspector in connection with the Albert Training institution.

The number of agricultural schools attached to workhouses has been considerably augmented, which obliges the Commissioners to seek for the additional grant of 400 l. under this head.

(E.)—Building, &c., School Houses.

In consequence of the very great advance in the prices of all building materials, the Commissioners have estimated that the sum of 500 l. will meet the increase to the grants for this service.

(F.)—District Model and Model Agricultural Schools.

The Commissioners are about erecting farm buildings for the accommodation of 30 pupils in connexion with the Limerick Literary District Model School. Towards this object the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury have contributed out of the "Reproductive Loan Loan Fund" the sum of 4,077*l.* 9*s.* 7*d.*, out of which 1,000*l.* has been allocated for the land, and 1,000*l.* placed at interest to the credit of the Trustees, towards maintaining the establishment; the balance of 2,077*l.* 9*s.* 7*d.*, with the 3,000*l.* now applied for, will be required during the present year for payments on account of the contract, which amounts to the sum of 7,148*l.*

In the estimate for the year 1853–4, 5,000*l.* was taken on account of the Belfast Literary District Model School. These buildings being now in course of erection, the sum of 4,000*l.* is included in this year's estimate towards meeting the residue of the contract, which amounts to 8,655*l.*

In last year's estimate 2,000*l.* was included towards the erection of farm buildings at Belfast. The Commissioners having decided to annex a model farm to the District Literary School, they have entered into a negotiation for renting over 100 statute acres of land at a convenient distance from the school, and a lease on a satisfactory tenure is about being executed. It will therefore be necessary to make an addition of 2,000*l.* to the sum already voted towards erecting these buildings.

The Commissioners propose establishing a Model Agricultural School in connexion with the Kilkenny Literary District Model School, for which purpose land has been leased to them to the extent of 79 statute acres; the sum of 3,000*l.* is included in the estimate towards erecting the farm-offices.

The District Model School situated in the city of Kilkenny is now in operation; the sum of 720*l.* has been included in the estimate for the salaries, maintenance, and additional number of resident pupils in this class of schools, and to provide for the increased rate of boarding allowance consequent upon the advanced price of dietary.

A gentleman has been appointed to deliver lectures on the various branches of elementary science to the advanced pupils attending the 10 District Model Schools now in operation, for which service the sum of 570*l.* is included to meet salary, travelling expenses, and the purchase of all necessary apparatus.

(G[1].)—Salaries to Teachers of National Schools.

In compliance with the request of the Government, conveyed to the Commissioners through his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant, they have had under consideration various important suggestions for the improvement and extension of the system of national education; amongst others, the propriety of giving an increased remuneration to the teachers, of augmenting the number of the inspectors, of dividing them into classes, and of making a progressive addition to their salaries according to their merits and length of service.

Annexed to this statement will be found the details of the scale of salaries to the teachers, as given in the forthcoming Report of the year 1854, and the new scale proposed to be acted on from the 1st of April 1855. Upon examination of the latter, it will appear that the increase to each class, and every division of a class, is very moderate, and that the total augmentation will not exceed 15,000*l.*

According to the present scale of salaries, the amount paid to each teacher annually, including probationers and assistants, is 17*l.*, which will be increased to 20*l.* per annum by the proposed scale.

The Commissioners do not consider that the rate of payment under the new scale should be the maximum of what the teachers ought ultimately to receive; but they are of opinion that the increase should be progressive, and that means should be adopted to secure, if possible, a larger amount of local contribution towards this object than has been heretofore obtained.

The Commissioners will be prepared to state their views on this difficult question in their Report for the year 1855.

(H.)—The Commissioners have had repeatedly under consideration the question of granting annual pensions to meritorious and decayed teachers, based upon the principle of an annual contribution from all the teachers towards a superannuation fund.

After mature deliberation the Commissioners are unanimously of opinion, that in the present condition of the national teachers in Ireland, it would not be possible to obtain from them the requisite amount of funds for such a purpose. They, therefore, suggest that, instead of giving retiring pensions they shall have the privilege of granting, in particular cases, to old, infirm, and deserving teachers who have been for a considerable number of years under the Board, a sum of money equal in amount to one or two years' salary, upon a satisfactory report from the inspectors as to the character and conduct of the applicants.

The Commissioners have already pursued this course to a very limited extent, and have found it to have been productive of great advantage in facilitating the appointment of competent successors to those teachers who may thus be induced to resign.

The Commissioners propose that, as a commencement, 2,000*l.* shall be included in the estimate for the present year, and that a moderate sum be added in every successive year, so as to form a reserve fund, to be specially applied to the promotion of this object.

The Commissioners will cause a minute of every grant of this description to be recorded, and to be published in their annual report.

(G[2].)—The Commissioners have found the system of paid monitors to work so satisfactorily, that they have determined to add to the number in each district, which involves an increase of 1,000*l.* on the last estimate.

(I.)—Inspection Department.

In the year 1852 the Commissioners found it necessary to increase the number of their school districts from 34 to 44, notwithstanding which the district inspectors have been seldom able to visit the schools under their charge more than twice in the year. The Commissioners have therefore considered it advisable, agreeably with the suggestions of the Government, to make a new distribution of their school districts, and to increase their number from 44 to 50. This arrangement will enable the Board to diminish to some extent the circuits of the inspectors, but even now they will have on an average over 100 schools each to report upon periodically. The salaries of the district inspectors, as will be seen by the reports of the Commissioners, have been for some time at 275*l.* per annum, out of which they have to pay their travelling expenses. The Commissioners have long considered this altogether as an inadequate remuneration for the laborious and responsible duties of inspection. They have, therefore, divided the inspectors into two classes, and who are to be paid according to the following scale:

First class, 10 at 320*l.* a year, increasing by 10*l.* annually to 370*l.*, the maximum.

Second class, 40 at 275*l.* a year, increasing by 7*l.* 10*s.* annually to 305*l.*, the maximum.

The head inspectors have heretofore received a salary of 300*l.* per annum, with an allowance of 12*s.* 6*d.* per day whilst on duty, and the actual cost of locomotion. The Commissioners, after full consideration of the importance of this office, and the great experience and high qualifications required for the efficient discharge of their official duties, have increased their salaries to 400*l.* per annum, with an allowance of 7*s.* 6*d.* per day for personal expenses when engaged on duty at their official residences, and 12*s.* 6*d.* per day when on the public service, and removed from home.

Under the head of "Incidental Expenditure" will be found a sum of 500*l.*, which will be required to meet all extra expenses attendant upon the removal of inspectors upon the recasting of the school districts, as above referred to.

It will be seen that under the head of "Inspection" the increase in the present estimate amounts to 3,210*l.*; and that the total sum, 19,900*l.*, provides for the salaries and travelling expenses of 6 head inspectors, 50 district inspectors, and 6 sub-inspectors; total, 62.

(K.)

Sir, Education Office, 26 March 1855.

We have the honour to transmit herewith, copies in duplicate of the Estimate of the Commissioners of National Education, Ireland, for the year 1855–6. We are to apologise for the unusual delay in preparing this document, which has arisen from a variety of urgent and important business which occupied almost the entire time of the Commissioners since the commencement of the year. The Commissioners request you will have the goodness to direct the immediate attention of the Lord Lieutenant to the heads under which an increase is asked for in the present estimate, as compared with that of 1854–5. His Excellency will observe, that the total amount of increase is 22,160 l., of which it is intended to appropriate about 15,000 l. to a small augmentation of the salaries of the National Teachers according to their respective classes and divisions. The Commissioners have attached an explanatory document, setting forth the grounds upon which they seek for additional funds. The Commissioners beg to state, for the information of his Excellency, that the increase already made to the number of inspectors, and in their salaries, and that which is proposed in the salaries of the National Teachers, are two of the suggestions forwarded by Government for the consideration of the Board, after the Select Committee of the House of Lords had completed their inquiries into the practical working of the National System in Ireland. Under these circumstances, the Commissioners trust that his Excellency will be pleased to recommend the estimate in its present form, and without curtailment, to the favourable consideration of the Lords of Her Majesty's Treasury.

We are, &c.

Colonel Larcom, Dublin Castle.

(a) The Palæontologist's Salary of 300 l. is now charged under the head of the Geological Survey, as the Office has been separated from the Lectureship on Natural History.

(b) The sum of 500 l. for provincial lectures in Ireland is expended under the direction of a joint Committee, partly appointed by the Government and partly by the Royal Dublin Society.

(c) This increase to the Vote for Museum and Library is owing to purchases made by authority of the Treasury, estimated at 12,000 l. from the Bernal Collection.

(d) The additional 150 l. to this Vote is taken with the view of meeting any deficiency that might arise from reducing the charge for admission to the present Museum from 1 s. to 6 d., and giving one day free admission.

(e) Last year a sum of 7,000 l. was taken for the site of the Industrial Museum in Scotland.

(a) The increase in this head of Service is occasioned by a change in the duties of one of the former joint Secretaries, who has been appointed Inspector-general, and thus a transfer of the Salary of 1,000 l. from No. 1 has been made, and an additional sum of 100 l. is taken for increased Inspection rendered necessary by arrangements with the Committee of Council on Education.

(b) Transferred from No. 2, under which head it appeared in last year's Estimate, as the duties of the Art Superintendent are of a general character, extending chiefly over the operation of local Schools.

(c) The diminution in the Estimate under this head is in consequence of the abolition of the Stores formerly kept by the Department, and of an arrangement by which the net allowance to Schools for Examples will be paid in future to the Agent who supplies them, instead of, as before, estimating for the gross cost, and paying back to the Exchequer the amount received from Schools.

290 Schools have been supplied with Examples in the past year.

(d) There are now 48 local Schools of Art, having upwards of 10,000 students, exclusive of those of Parish Schools established in connexion with the Department, besides 9 Metropolitan District Schools.

In the Central Normal School there are 64 Masters in training, and in the Central District and Parish Schools in London 2,831 Students.

(e) Travelling Expenses, No. 3.—This sum of 2,000 l. is 50 l. less than last year, as it includes amounts taken in last year's Estimates under three heads of Service; viz.—

Royal

Royal Irish Academy.

During the Academic Session 1853-4, ending the 26th June last, the usual number, namely, 14 meetings took place. These meetings were attended by 691 members, and by 177 visitors introduced by members.

As compared with former returns, this shows a considerable falling off, to be explained' however, by the want of proper accommodation, and the general interference, due to the alterations and repairs in the house during the session.

The books and manuscripts were brought into the new Library in May last, and have been since partly arranged; but, owing to the dampness of the atmosphere of the room, they have had to be repeatedly removed and aired; and now that measures have been adopted for the proper drainage of the room under the Library, and the heating of that apartment, the cessation of dust from the works lately in progress, and the interference on the part of workmen, it may be expected the Library will be soon permanently arranged, and made available for readers.

The antiquities in the Museum have been provisionally arranged and made accessible to visitors; but from the circumstances in which both Museum and Library were placed, by occasional shiftings of their contents, neither department was considered open, though no one was actually refused admission. Under these circumstances no return of visitors was kept to either department.

In the course of last year eight new members were elected.

A comparison of the last general abstract of the yearly account for audit, for the year 1853-4, sent herewith, with that of the previous year, the gross private income of the Academy, arising out of—

Annual Subscriptions -	361	4	–	„	- - -	434	14	–
£.	479	17	–	„	- - £.	585	18	–

gives a decrease of 106 l. 1 s.; the falling off being in the life compositions and annual subscriptions. In the former only one full payment of 21*l.* was made, and in the latter the deficiency has grown out of the unusually large arrear of subscriptions due when the yearly account for audit was closed; of those subscriptions then due, some have been paid since, and others are still due.

During the past year the Academy has continued the publication and diffusion of its transactions and proceedings, and paid on account of books and printing, and for antiquities, 307 l. 6 s. 8 d., a sum greater than the annual Parliamentary grant. This sum so expended may be considered as entirely devoted to permanent public purposes.

The general activity of the Academy during the past year has been much hindered by the works in progress; but these may be considered nearly complete since the 9th December last.

REPORT

REPORT of the Royal Hibernian Academy, for the Year 1854.

The Royal Hibernian Academy deeply regret to have to report, that the result of their exertions during the past year has been far from satisfactory.

The expenses attendant upon their efforts to render their Exhibition of 1853 worthy of the Irish Academy of Art, at a period when Dublin became a point of unusual attraction to visitors from all countries, were necessarily much greater than usual; and though the proceeds resulting from that Exhibition were somewhat greater than those of a few preceding years, they were still much below what the Academy had expected, and were not only insufficient to meet the expenses of the Exhibition, but were so far short of doing so, as to add considerably to the embarrassments under which the Academy had previously laboured.

Under such circumstances, it was perhaps a perilous undertaking for the Academy to hazard a repetition of a similar untoward result, by encountering the expenses attendant upon an exhibition in the past year. But their sense of duty, combined, no doubt, with some hope of better success, impelled them to do so at every risk; and as an absolutely necessary step towards such an effort, their officers volunteered to perform their laborious duties, with the understanding that the payment of their salaries should remain in abeyance until the Academy should be placed in such improved circumstances as would enable them to fulfil their obligations.

From the same sense of duty the Academy continued to keep open as usual their schools of painting, of the living model, and of the antique; and they had the satisfaction of finding an increased attendance of students at those schools, with a more marked devotion to their studies.

This experiment, however, notwithstanding all their efforts to carry it out, has, as the Academy are grieved to state, proved far more disastrous to their pecuniary interests than the Exhibition of 1853, or indeed any Exhibition for many years preceding; and, as a consequence, the debts of the Academy have accumulated to such an amount, as without aid they can see no possibility of discharging; and they cannot conceal from themselves that even their existence is thus seriously endangered as an institution, which ought to have the power of promoting the civilization of the country.

With respect, however, to the failure of this Exhibition, it should perhaps, to some extent, be attributed to the change in the time of opening it—from the summer to the winter season—a change which the Academy were induced to make, as well from the lateness of the Exhibition of 1853, as from a desire to test the prudence of changing their Exhibition from a summer to a winter one—a change which had been often urged upon them. But they are happy to state, that during the spring of the year they had the pleasure of allowing the use of their galleries to the Irish Institution, for their kindred exhibition of the works of the old masters; and though this change of season has not been productive of the results hoped for, the prudence of the experiment has not perhaps been fairly tested; for the unusual inclemency of the weather, while the exhibition was open, should be taken into account as a possible cause of its failure.

But, be the cause of failure as it may, this failure has been such as to destroy the hope which the Academy had ventured to express in their Reports of the preceding years; namely, through a gradual improvement in the condition of the people, and their consequent indulgence of a love for the Fine Arts, the Academy would, at least gradually, be enabled to extricate themselves from the pecuniary embarrassments in which they were so unexpectedly and unavoidably involved during the famine and subsequent years. They now, however, find themselves in such a crippled state, that, without some additional aid beyond their usual Parliamentary grant, they will be wholly unable to fulfil the important duties for which they have been incorporated; and, under these depressing circumstances, the Academy have recently felt themselves obliged to lay a statement of the condition of the institution before the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, in the hope that his Excellency would be pleased to recommend the bestowal of such additional assistance as would relieve them from their difficulties, and restore the institution to its proper state of activity and usefulness.

The failure, in a pecuniary point of view, of the Exhibition of the last year, as compared with that of the year preceding, will appear from the following comparative statements of the results of the two Exhibitions:—

The Exhibition of 1853 was opened at 1*s.* admission on the 30th of July, and closed on the 8th of October, after being opened for 60 days, during which it was visited by 1,119 adults, and 22 children at 6*d.* each; and there were 94 season tickets sold at 2*s.* 6*d.* each, and 530 catalogues at 6*d.* each, giving a total receipt of 81*l.* 9*s.* During a portion of this period, however, namely, from the 22d of September to the 8th of October, the Exhibition was open in the evenings, by gas-light, at 6*d.* admission, during which there were sold 422 check tickets, 2 season tickets, and 108 catalogues, giving a receipt of 13*l.* 10*s.*, which, added to the day receipts, made a total of 94*l.* 19*s.*

The Exhibition of 1854 was opened at 1*s.* admission on the 25th of September, and closed on the 18th of November, after being open for 48 days, during which it was visited by 852 adults and 15 children at 6*d.* each; and there were 100 season tickets, sold at 2*s.* 6*d.* each, and 487 catalogues at 4*d.*, giving a total receipt of 63*l.* 11*s.* 10.

The Exhibition of 1853 was re-opened at 1*d.* admission both by day-light and by gas-light on the 15th of October, and closed on the 3d of December, after being open for 48 days, during which it was visited by 11,939 persons by day-light, to whom 1,350 catalogues, at 4*d.* each, were sold, and by 27,319 persons by gas-light, to whom 1,942 catalogues were sold, making a total of visitors of 39,258, and of catalogues sold 3,292, and a gross receipt in money of 218*l.* 8*s.* 10*d.*

The Exhibition of 1854 was re-opened at the same rate of 1*d.* admission, both by day-light and by gaslight, on the 20th of November, and closed on the 27th January 1855, after being open for 59 days, during which it was visited by 12,126 persons by daylight, to whom 1,664 catalogues were sold, at 3*d.* each; and by 15,911 persons by gaslight, to whom 1,489 catalogues were sold at the same rate: thus,

The Total Number of persons visiting the Exhibition of 1853, was—

At 1*s.* admission	1,025
At 6*d.* admission	424
At 1*d.* admission	39,258
Making a Total of visitors		40,707

The Total Number visiting the Exhibition of 1854, was—

At 1*s.* admission	967
At 1*d.* admission	28,984
Making a Total of visitors of		29,951

The Total Numbers of Catalogues sold in 1853, was 3,930
Ditto - - ditto - - - in 1854, „ 3,640

And finally, the Total Cash receipts from the Exhibition of 1853, were £.313 7 10

Ditto - - ditto - - - - of 1854, „ 219 16 6

In reference to their Schools, the Academy have to report, that the School of the Antique was re-opened for day students, after the close of the Exhibition of 1853, on the 9th of January 1854, and was closed on the 15th of June, after a period of 22 weeks, during which the average attendance was, daily, 3; weekly, 18; and total of session, 396.

This School was also opened on the same day, and in the evenings by gas-light, alternately with the School of the Living Model, and was continued open for 23 weeks, during which the average attendance daily was 6; weekly, 36; and total of session, 468.

The School of the Living Model was re-opened on the 17th of January, and closed, after a session of 18 weeks, on the 27th of May, during which the average daily attendance was 10; weekly, 60; and total of session, 600. This school was unavoidably closed some weeks before the Antique School, in consequence of the want of funds to pay the models.

Balance due to the Province of Canada in respect to the Relief of Sick and Destitute Emigrants from the United Kingdom in the year 1847 — £. 10,500.

In consequence of the famine in Ireland, and of the sickness which ensued, very heavy burdens were thrown on the Province of Canada for the Relief of Distressed Immigrants. This country agreed to defray the expenses, on condition that Canada should thenceforward undertake all charges for the relief and management of Immigrants [see Lord Grey's Despatch of the 14th of April 1848, in Parliamentary Paper on Emigration, April 1848]: A sum of 130,965 l. was voted for this Service in 1848, and the present Vote is required in consequence of the balance of 17,462 l. 6 s. 8 d., which remained unexpended upon the Grant of 1848, having been stated as a saving in 1853, under the impression that no further payments would be required [see Finance Accounts, No. 275, of 1853, p. 100].

CORRESPONDENCE respecting SUPERNUMERARY INTERPRETERS attached to the SUPERINTENDENCY of TRADE in China.

E. Hammond, Esq. to J. Wilson, Esq.

Sir, Foreign Office, 7 August 1854.

WITH reference to the arrangement which was made in the early part of the present year, for increasing to seven the number of Supernumerary Interpreters in China, I am directed by the Earl of Clarendon to request that you will acquaint the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, that the condition of the British Establishments in China, under the direction of this office, has been so forcibly brought to his notice by Sir J. Bowring since his return to China, that however reluctant he is to increase the public expenditure in that quarter of the world, he feels himself imperatively called upon to represent to the Board of Treasury the necessity of making more extensive provision for the present and prospective wants of the service in China, and possibly in Japan.

In consequence of the trade which has recently sprung up at Foochowfoo, and which promises to increase to a very great extent, it will in all probability be shortly necessary to re-establish a full Consul at that port; but the point to which Lord Clarendon is anxious at the present time to call the attention of the Treasury, is the necessity of training up young persons to act in the several Consulates either as Interpreters or Assistants, to be promoted eventually to the higher ranks of the Consular Service.

It may be possible on an emergency to obtain from other quarters persons well calculated to hold the highest rank in the Consular Service in China, but however eminent the qualifications of such persons may be, their efforts to discharge their duties would be, in a great measure, paralysed by the want of efficient Interpreters and Assistants; and I am more particularly to observe, that the want of an efficient corps of subordinate officers will be most severely felt, and the public interests will suffer accordingly, in the probable event of confusion spreading through the empire of China, and of opportunities being thereby afforded of extending our commercial intercourse with the Chinese people beyond the limits assigned by treaty.

Furthermore, as there is every prospect of an early opening of an intercourse with Japan, it is necessary to make timely provisions for Consular establishments in that country.

Under these circumstances, Lord Clarendon would propose to the Lords of the Treasury to send out to China, with as little delay as possible, six more young men, who would, in the first instance, be designated as Supernumerary Interpreters, with a salary of 200*l.* a year, and a free passage to Hong Kong; and in selecting them, Lord Clarendon would be influenced by their having already acquired in this country a certain degree of proficiency in the Chinese language. His Lordship has reason to believe, that a considerable impetus has been given to the study of the Chinese language, by the course which he adopted in regard to the appointments lately made by him; and his Lordship intends to apply to King's College, where there is a Chinese professor, for suitable candidates for the appointments which he now proposes, with the concurrence of the Treasury, to make.

Considering the great commercial interest which this country has in the trade with China, and it may be hoped will shortly have with that of Japan, Lord Clarendon is of opinion that it is incumbent on Her Majesty's Government to take timely measures, so that opportunities of extending that trade may not be lost from a want of efficient officers to superintend and protect it.

Lord Clarendon, therefore, trusts that under these circumstances he may count on the co-operation of the Board of Treasury in giving effect to a measure which he conceives to be necessary for the public interest, and which is likely to contribute so much to the development of British commerce in the Eastern Seas.

I am

I am to add, that the accounts received since the date of Lord Clarendon's letter of the 11th of February, of the state of health in the Consular establishments, continue to be as distressing as heretofore, with the exception of there being no death among them to record in addition to the eleven which have already occurred since the peace; but two of the members of the establishment have been obliged to leave their posts, and three of the most valuable Consular officers are represented to be in a most precarious state of health. The number of absentees on sick leave is now nine, who make up nearly one-third of the whole establishment: one of them is, however, about to return to China. The pressure upon those who continue to struggle with the climate is accordingly severe; and in proportion as they become better qualified, by experience and residence in the country, for the discharge of their duties, they are likely to be rendered incapable to discharge those duties from the utter prostration of their physical powers.

I am, &c.
(signed) E. Hammond.

J. Wilson, Esq. to E. Hammond, Esq.

Sir, Treasury Chambers, 11 August 1854.

The Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury having had under their consideration your letter of the 7th inst., representing the circumstances under which the Earl of Clarendon is induced to recommend the selection of six more young men, to be designated Supernumerary Interpreters, with a salary of 200 l. a year each, and a free passage to Hong Kong, I am commanded to acquaint you, for his Lordship's information, that my Lords are pleased to sanction the arrangement proposed in his Lordship's letter.

I have, &c.
(signed) James Wilson.

REPORT of the Governors and Guardians of the LYING-IN HOSPITAL, DUBLIN.

THE Lying-in Hospital was founded by the late Dr. Bart. Mosse in 1756, and obtained a charter of incorporation.

Since its foundation it has afforded relief to an average of 2,000 of the most destitute poor women of this city and neighbourhood, annually; the class of persons relieved being the wives of poor artisans, distressed citizens, soldiers, sailors, labourers, servants, and others, many of whom, although able to support themselves and families by their daily labour, are yet totally destitute of the necessary accommodation, medicines, attendance, and other comforts required, and which this hospital so amply affords to them in their time of need. Every distressed and helpless mother who presents herself, and is properly recommended as an object of relief, is at once received into this institution (poverty being the only passport required), and watched over by the medical attendants until discharged in a fit state to return to her home and resume the duties of her family. There are 140 beds in the hospital, 25 of which are unoccupied, owing to the withdrawal of a portion of the Parliamentary grant, and 15 are exclusively appropriated to the diseases of females.

The income of this hospital is derived from the following sources: Parliamentary grant; interest on funded property; rents of houses; subscriptions and donations; profits on Rotunda Rooms and Gardens, which are let for public entertainments, exhibitions, &c. The certain yearly income is only 701*l.* 7*s.* 11*d.*, and the casual income only 1,100*l.*, as averaged for the last three years.

In the year 1790 the Governors were authorised by Act of 29 & 30 Geo. 3, to borrow 11,000*l.* Irish on debentures, at four per cent. interest, in order to complete the building of the Rotunda Rooms, the interest upon which, amounting to 406*l.* 1*s.* 3*d.* British per annum, they were for a long period enabled to pay out of a tax received (under 25 Geo. 3), from the owners of private sedan chairs; but, by degrees, this duty ceased to exist, and has not for many years produced any income, and the interest on those debentures has, since 1803, been regularly paid out of the annual grant received from Parliament, the Governors having no other fund from which they could by possibility pay the some.

By the continued efforts of the Governors to reduce the expenses of the establisment to the lowest point consistent with its usefulness, they have been enabled to make a lower estimate for the ensuing year than those of former years; but still a sum of upwards of 1,000*l.* would be required, in addition to the income as above stated, in order to carry on the institution efficiently, and keep the very extensive buildings in a proper state of repair.

An abstract of the income and expenditure for the year ended 31st March 1854, accompanies this Report, together with a statement of the number of cases relieved.

Signed by order,
J. G. Strickland,
Regr.

Within the past year 2,421 cases were vaccinated at this institution, and 11,488 charges of vaccine lymph have been issued. On reference being made to the column under this heading, it will appear that the demand for lymph has been for some years, more especially the last three, steadily increasing; the issue of this year exceeding that of the one preceding by more than one-half the whole demand for said year.

The necessity for this increased supply has arisen in part from a greater number of Poor Law unions subscribing; but more particularly from the difficulty recently experienced in inducing the parents of those undergoing the process of vaccination to bring their children back to the several dispensaries at the time most suitable for taking from the vesicles the recent lymph for further use, and thus enabling the professional attendants efficiently to carry out a system of active, continuous vaccination, as also to keep up for contingencies a moderate supply. From the numerous letters received at the institution, referring to this subject, the inference is, that a very great many do not return at all, while of those who do, a considerable number are presented for observation, either with the vesicles injured, the result of accident or negligence, or, as is most frequently the case, after the eighth day, when the contained fluid is no longer adapted to the purposes of healthy vaccination. Numerous communications have been received from country practitioners complaining of these difficulties, and on these grounds explaining the necessity thus forced upon them for their very frequent applications for vaccine virus.

The directors feel it is much to be regretted that some measures have not been adopted to secure the return at the proper period of those attempted to be vaccinated; inasmuch as their being kept back is attended with a twofold inconvenience; firstly, the withholding a fair supply of recent and consequently more efficacious lymph; and, secondly, (what in a public point of view is of even greater importance), the entire uncertainty as to the result, in each individual instance. It is quite impossible without the due and repeated inspection of the arm to arrive at any thing approaching a satisfactory conclusion on the matter; hence it follows as a consequence of such neglect that the benefit sought to be conferred upon the public, by affording apparently every facility for the furtherance of vaccination, is rendred comparatively null and void.

The "deposit system" has been prohibited, on the ground that there is no provision in "the Medical Charities Act" authorizing such a course, and that when it had been adopted, this object of securing the return had not been uniformly attained, as in many instances persons of sufficient means to be able to leave a pecuniary deposit have not again presented themselves; and that, on the other hand, were it generally understood that a pecuniary deposit, however small, were required, it would operate amongst the poorer classes as a check to their availing themselves of the benefit of vaccination. Upon this point the directors do not attempt to offer any opinion ; still they cannot but recollect that in this institution such a system has for many years worked admirably well; indeed they can safely state, that had it not been steadily enforced (of course with some discretionary exceptions, when the applicant is very poor), the returns from apathy or other causes would have been comparatively few, much more than one-half of those vaccinated without a deposit having been insisted upon, having neglected to return. Nor can they shut their eyes to the fact, that under the former dispensary arrangements it was very generally adopted throughout the country at large, and with very advantageous results.

In the second annual report of the Commissioners for administering the laws for the relief of the poor in Ireland, for the year commencing 1st October 1852, and ending 30th September 1853, the number vaccinated at the different dispensaries of the north and south city and rural districts (17 in all) is stated at 2,370 ; while within the same period in this institution, where the deposit system is strictly enforced, there were vaccinated 2,138 ; being little above 200 less than the total of the 17 institutions.

As regards the question of compulsory vaccination, the directors, while they abstain from the expression of any judgment thereupon, would call attention to the fact, that in the kingdoms and states in which vaccination is most efficiently carried out by legislative enactments in the form of compulsion, direct or indirect, the mortality from small-pox is the least.

They would in conclusion earnestly endeavour to impress upon the minds of those in authority the importance of the consideration, as to how far it might be practicable to adopt such measures as would be calculated to ensure a second, and, if possible, even a third visit, from the applicants for vaccination; otherwise they are compelled to fear that the whole matter must remain in a state of unprofitable uncertainty, a vague inference as to the result being the only conclusion that can be arrived at.

By Order,

Henry L. Dwyer, M.D., Secretary.

Alfred H. M'Clintock, M.D., Assistant Secretary.

COPY of HYDROGRAPHER'S REPORT on CAPE RACE LIGHT.

WHEN the subject of lighting the south-eastern shores of Newfoundland was under consideration in 1847–9, it was always intended to place a light on Cape Race as well as on Cape Pine.

The colony, however, objected, saying that "although they fully admitted the necessity of a second light, they could not provide funds to maintain two lights." (See Coll. Robe's letter of 10th February 1848, to Inspector-general of Fortifications.)

The project, therefore, was given up for the time; one revolving light was placed on Cape Pine, and a beacon 65 feet high instead on Cape Race.

Cape Race is the landfall of all outward bound vessels, including the mail steamers to Halifax, Boston, and New York. The value of such a light at present need hardly be insisted insisted on; but it will be still greater should the proposal of Lieutenant Maury of the U. S. Navy be carried out (as sooner or later it will be), that outward bound vessels should all cross the Atlantic by the northern route, and all homeward bound by a southern track, in order to avoid the risk of collision in foggy weather.

Captain Bayfield, in reporting on the subject of these lights on the 26th August 1847 (Parl. Papers, 225—1849), says, "A light on Cape Race to vessels outward bound from Great Britain and Ireland, and especially to the royal mail steamers, would be far more valuable than on Cape Pine." And again, "A light on each of these headlands would possess distinct and important advantages, and it will probably, therefore, in the end be found necessary to light them both."

More than seven years have elapsed since the above was written; the traffic to the North American colonies and the United States has greatly increased; several wrecks have occurred; and so greatly is the want of a light felt, that a Bill is actually before the Congress of the United States of America for powers to erect a lighthouse, provided the British Government will grant a site.

Under such circumstances I respectfully but earnestly submit, that their Lordships should give a decided opinion to the Secretary of State for the Colonies (as requested in his letter) in favour of a light being placed immediately on Cape Race, and that every effort be used to have it exhibited by the fall of the year, which can easily be accomplished, provided the orders be issued at once, and the work be entrusted to one responsible person.

As there is a revolving light on Cape Spear, 53 miles to the northward, and also on Cape Pine, about 18 miles to the westward, the following suggestions are submitted for consideration:

1. That the light to be fixed on Cape Race be a fixed bright light of the most powerful kind, on the simplest catoptic or reflecting principle.

2. That it will be visible for little more than one-half the circle, or about 205 degrees; that is in the direction from N. E. by E., round by east and south to W. half S. (magnetic), but not seen towards Cape Pine.

3. That the height of the lantern be 60 feet above the surface, or 200 feet above the level of the sea, in order that the light may be visible 20 miles in clear weather from the deck of a ship.

4. That to prevent the possibility of the lighthouse being mistaken for that of Cape Pine on the partial clearing up of a fog by day, the building be very distinct in form from the tower on Cape Pine, and as this latter is painted white, that the tower on Cape Race be painted in broad horizontal bands of black, or red and white.

5. That every portion of the lantern and lighting apparatus be the exact counterpart of that at Cape Pine, 17 miles distant, so that in the event of any portion of either getting out of order, it might be supplied from the other; an advantage not to be overlooked in a distant colony.

6. That the tower be furnished with a screaming apparatus, worked by compressed air, or with a powerful bell to be rung by machinery as a fog signal; fogs being so prevalent on that coast in calm weather.

7. That the lighthouse be of iron, the same as that at Cape Pine, as in that case the whole can be set up in England, and the pieces marked, so that when sent out, it will only require to be put together on the spot.

8. That it stand upon the foundation of the present beacon, which, being 23 feet diameter and 65 feet high, will afford a dwelling for the workmen.

9. That the whole cost of such a tower, with lantern complete, need not exceed 5,000 l., a sum utterly insignificant when compared with the saving of life and of property that must result from a light on this prominent headland.

The lighthouse on Cape Pine was erected and the light exhibited in 204 working days, or within seven months from the order being given (exclusive of the winter months, when all work was suspended). There can be no doubt, therefore, that the light on Cape Race could be lighted by the 1st November; and to accomplish this very desirable result, I venture to recommend that the work be put into the hands of the same engineer who undertook the building at Cape Pine, and that an immediate decision be come to on the subject.

The annexed correspondence shows the grounds upon which this expenditure is proposed to be incurred.

My Lords, Office of Works, &c., 11 April 1855.

I BEG leave to bring under your Lordships' consideration the subject of a requisition which has been made to this department by the Master of the Rolls, that wire doors, ends, and divisions may be provided for the presses in the new Record Repository in Chancery-lane.

The supply of these doors, &c. was not originally contemplated; and until this requisition was made, it had been proposed that the documents should be placed on open racks, and that each depository should be protected by an iron door. No provision for these articles, which are considered by the architect to be unnecessary, has, therefore, been made in the estimates for the building.

I have thought it right, under these circumstances, before communicating with your Lordships' Board on this matter, in order that there may be no doubt in regard to the cost of these proposed additions to the presses, to make them the subject of competition among competent tradesmen. This proceeding has resulted in an offer on the part of Mr. Turner, of East-street, Manchester-square, whose tender was the lowest in amount, to supply and fix all the doors, ends, and divisions which would be required to carry out the wishes of the Master of the Rolls for the sum of 24,905 l.

Upon the receipt of this offer, I communicated the amount of it to the Master of the Rolls, and informed him that there were no funds at the disposal of this department applicable to these extra services, and that I could not incur the expenditure which they would involve without your Lordships' authority.

In reply, the Master of the Rolls has stated to me, that, although he is anxious to avoid an expense so great as the supply and fixing of the wire doors, &c. would involve, yet that he feels strongly impressed with the opinion that in the absence of such articles the records would not be sufficiently protected.

Under these circumstances, I have to request that I may be informed whether your Lordships are prepared to sanction the use of the wire doors in question, and whether it is your Lordships' wish that the cost of them should be provided for in the estimates of this department for the year to come.

See Appendix.

Copies of the communications bearing upon this subject which have passed between the Master of the Rolls and myself are appended to this letter for your Lordships' information.

I should observe that, finding, upon inquiry, that the substitution of slate for wood in the construction of the shelves of the presses would not give rise to additional expense, I have, in deference to the strong opinion expressed by the Master of the Rolls in favour of that substance, ordered it to be used, there being funds available for this portion of the fittings.

I am, &c.

APPENDIX.

Sir, Office of Works, &c., 12, Whitehall-place, 30 October 1854.

I BEG leave to transmit to you a copy of a letter, dated the 12th instant, which has been received by this Board from Mr. Pennethorne, and a specification and three drawings (also sent herewith) for the wrought-iron presses required for the new General Record Repository, according to the plans recently prepared by him, and signed, as approved, by the deputy keeper, and the three assistant keepers of records.

You will observe, from Mr. Pennethorne's letter, that there are two points in regard to this work, which at present appear subject to question, and upon which I request your opinion, viz.:

1. The provision of wire doors for the presses in the depositories, and of wire ends and divisions between them; and also, of glass doors for the presses in the officers' rooms and searching room.

2. The provision of shelves in them, whether of wood, slate, or wrought-iron, as to the superior eligibility of which materials some difference of opinion is found to exist between the deputy-keeper of the Rolls and Mr. Pennethorne.

Upon these points you will, perhaps, take an opportunity of communicating with Mr. Pennethorne previously to your giving me a reply to this letter.

I have, &c.

The Right Hon. Sir John Romilly. (signed) William Molesworth.

Sir, Rolls House, 2 December 1854.

In answer to your letter of the 30th October, requesting my opinion on two questions—

1st. The provision of wire doors for the presses in the depositories, and of wire ends and divisions between them, and also of glass doors in the officers' rooms and searching room.

2d. The provision of shelves in them, whether of wood, slate, or wrought-iron, as to the superior eligibility of which materials some difference of opinion existed between the deputy keeper of the public records and Mr. Pennethorne, and further suggesting that upon these points I should take an opportunity of communicating with Mr. Pennethorne previously to giving you a reply to your letter.

I beg to state, that, on the receipt of that letter, I addressed a letter to Mr. Pennethorne, in which I enclosed a copy of your letter, and in which I requested him to furnish me with information on the three following points; viz.

1. The exact size and thickness required for the shelves of one room, if made of wood, with the exact weight and cost.

2. The exact size and thickness required for the shelves of the same room, if made of slate, with the exact weight and cost.

3. The exact size and thickness required for the shelves of the same room, if made of iron, with their exact weight and cost.

In answer to this letter, I have received a communication from Mr. Pennethorne, a copy of which I enclose. Upon receipt of that letter, being myself ignorant of the details of the matters mentioned by him, but not being satisfied with the estimate made by Mr. Pennethorne, particularly with regard to slate, I consulted a builder in the metropolis of great eminence on the subject, without stating the purpose for which my inquiries were directed. He informed me that three-fourths of an inch thick for slate was much greater than was required; that by a series of experiments which had been made, half-inch thick of slate was able to bear greater weight than one inch of deal shelves. This alone, if correct, would reduce one-third of the weight, and a very large portion of the expense estimated by Mr. Pennethorne. I was also further informed, from the same source, that in fitting up slate shelves for book-cases, it was not usual, and not necessary, that the face and edges should be rubbed, but that planing was quite sufficient; and that when they were not required to be drawn out and in, a merely sawn surface was sufficient. The same gentleman also stated to me, that the usual estimate of the difference between wood shelves Kyanized and slate shelves was, 5 d. for the wood and 6 d. for the slate per superficial square foot, or at least in that proportion. He said, however, that at this time the slate, from temporary causes, was dear, and that consequently at this moment the slate would probably be dearer. He further stated to me, that in his opinion one-twentieth of an inch for iron was not sufficient, and that it would not bear the weight required. I forbear from mentioning the name of the gentleman who gave me this information, as he was extremely desirous that his name should not be divulged, although I had full liberty to make use of the information he gave me. He did not, for the reason I have stated, consider that the weight of slate ought to be above two-thirds of the weight assigned by Mr. Pennethorne; but assuming it to be the full weight, he did not consider that any objection, assuming that the building was properly constructed for the purpose for which it was designed; and that a few tons weight, more or less, in rooms constructed to bear a very great weight of records, was not a matter to be taken into consideration. I have, since I received Mr. Pennethorne's communication, and the information I have above detailed, taken such pains as I can to inform myself on the subject, and the opinion which I have come to on the first question, and which I venture respectfully to lay before yourself and the Board of Public Works is, that slate is the material most desirable for the construction of the shelves. Wood appears to me to be wholly inadmissible in a building the whole principle and object of which is that it should be fire-proof in every respect.

The assistant keepers, and also the officers of the State Paper Office, which is now limited to the Public Records, and placed under the control of the Master of the Rolls, generally object to wrought-iron shelves. I think it my duty to say that I am by no means convinced of the validity of their objections, nor do I believe that this material will be found to injure the records. It requires, however, little experience in the management of an establishment, such as the keeping of records, not to feel the expediency of reasonably satisfying the officers who will have to manage and conduct the practical details of the establishment that their exertions will be supported, and that nothing should be allowed to exist in it to which deficiencies or negligences can be attributed.

I beg, therefore, to express my opinion that slate will be the best material of which the shelves can be composed, and my belief that, if sufficient inquiry be made on the subject, regard being had to the strength required, and the requisites of the records to be prererved, neither the expense nor the weight will be found to be a sufficient reason for rejecting this material.

As regards the other question, viz., that relating to the provision of wire doors for the presses in the depositories, and of wire ends and divisions between them, I beg to express my most decided opinion and belief that this is essential for the protection of the records, and that the outer door is not a sufficient protection. I believe that the greater part of the depredations committed in public libraries and depositories arises from persons who, in the exercise of their various duties, whether connected with objects deposited, or the care of the building, have access to the rooms containing the books and documents, and the fact of the presses being kept locked prevents depredation, which might otherwise take place, although one of the officers was in the room. I believe also that many persons will take a book, or leaf out of a book, who would not break open a press or a lock, however easily it might be done. I think, however, that they should be made as strong as can reasonably be done. I have expressed my opinion to this effect both to the deputy keeper and to Mr. Pennethorne, and I consider this to be essential for the due preservation of the records.

With respect to the estimated cost of this, Mr. Pennethorne appears to mention a sum rather by guess than by estimation: I believe the estimate he suggests of 30,000 l. far to exceed what would be the expense required. I have caused a calculation to be made of the number of doors, backs, and ends, a copy of which I enclose, from which, upon such materials as I am able to obtain, the cost would be far less than that estimated by Mr. Pennethorne; but whether this be so or not, I beg to state my decided opinion, that without this protection the safety of the records from depredation will not be perfect, and that it cannot be dispensed with.

I have thought it best to address this letter to you at once, instead of prolonging the correspondence between Mr. Pennethorne and myself, as I think it probable that if a copy of this letter be sent to Mr. Pennethorne, and the communications carried on with the Board of Works, a more satisfactory and speedy result will be arrived at.

I have, &c.

The Right Hon. Sir Wm. Molesworth, Bart.

Sir, Office of Works, 7 March 1855.

With reference to your letter of the 2d December last, in which you expressed an opinion that slate would be the best material for the shelves of the pressess required in the new Record Repository, and that those presses should be provided with wire doors, ends, and divisions, for the due protection of the records, I have to acquaint you, that, on the receipt of your letter, I caused applications to be made to competent tradesmen, with the view of ascertaining the probable cost of these works.

From the information which I have obtained, it would appear that if slate should be used, the cost would not exceed that of deal shelves, and would be considerably less than that of wrought-iron. Under these circumstances, in compliance with your strongly expressed opinion in favour of the use of slate, I shall direct that material to be used.

With regard to the wire doors, divisions, and ends, I have received tenders from three tradesmen, the lowest of which is that of Mr. Turner, of East-street, Manchester-square, who proposes to supply and fix these articles for the sum of 24,905 l. The tenders received from the other tradesmen amounted respectively to 31,201 l. 13 s., and 34,505 l. 15 s. 11 d.

In your letter you refer to Mr. Pennethorne's estimate for those works, which amounted to 30,000 l., and you state your belief that that sum would far exceed the cost of them. As such, however, is not the case, and you may not be prepared to recommend so large an outlay as 24,905 l., I think it right to bring this subject again under your consideration before making any report thereon to the Lords of the Treasury, to whom, as there are no funds at present available to meet this expenditure, I must apply for authority to provide for it in the estimates of this department for the year to come, which will shortly be submitted to Parliament.

I have, &c.

Sir, Rolls House, March 1855.

With reference to your letter of the 7th March 1855, I beg to express my satisfaction at the decision you have come to relative to the material for the shelves of the presses required in the new Repository. With reference to the wire doors, I feel placed in considerable difficulty by your letter. On the one hand, I am anxious to avoid an expense so great as that which you mention to be the cost of supplying and fixing these articles; but at the same time I feel strongly impressed with the opinion that, in the absence of such articles, the records will not be sufficiently protected.

In the course of the discussions respecting the wire doors, it has been supposed, and frequently urged, that the documents are sufficiently protected by the iron door, and that none but confidential persons would enter.

This may in a great degree be true with respect to a small strong room, such as those in bankers' or merchants' offices, of which the key is always in the custody of a head clerk or a partner; yet even in this case it is not entirely true, because deed boxes, &c. have always always separate locks and keys; but each record receptacle is a large room, containing very many thousands of valuable documents, which, if the presses are unprovided with doors, would be at the mercy of any one person entering the room. The rooms must constantly be entered by clerks, messengers, workmen, &c., who, in an official view, are not confidential officers; and, without disrespect to any one individual, no confidence can be reposed in any body of men indiscriminately, and the mere exposure of people to temptation is in the highest degree objectionable. Even in club libraries we know that, amongst the very select class who obtain admission there, individuals are found who yield to the temptation of being able to appropriate a book by stretching out their hands.

Owing to the passion for collecting, there is not a single ancient document, or a single modern document, with a signature, which has not a pecuniary value, frequently to a large amount, and amidst our mass thousands might be pulled out by degrees without the chance of detection.

There never was a well-ordered library in which all MSS., and all books of value, are not kept under lock, and the keys entrusted to a very few persons. All the records are manuscripts, and unique manuscripts, which, if worth preserving at all, ought to be preserved with the greatest care.

Considering the nature of the edifice, and the vast importance of its contents, no precaution whatever should be neglected that can expose the structure, or its contents, to any danger. As far as stability and security against fire are concerned, this has been admirably effected by the architect, and it would be most undesirable to deprive this national edifice of any protection which it ought to receive; and prejudicial as delay may be, it would be better to elect, as the lesser of the two evils, that the expense should be spread over a greater number of years. There are some classes of documents which, under the pressure of those circumstances, may be selected to be left for a time without the doors, as least likely to suffer from the absence of them, but even this is, in my opinion, undesirable. I must leave the matter in your hands with these observations.

I am, &c.

TREASURY MINUTE, dated 20 April 1855, on the foregoing Correspondence.

WRITE to Sir W. Molesworth, that, with the strong opinion expressed by the Master of the Rolls as to the necessity for wire doors to the presses, to protect the documents under his care, my Lords are pleased to sanction the expenditure of the sum stated by Sir W. Molesworth as being necessary; but state, that my Lords are of opinion that the expenditure may be thrown over three years, as suggested by the Master of the Rolls.

Sir, Rolls House, 9 May 1855.

FOR the information of their Lordships, I have the honour to enclose a copy of a letter of the Master of the Rolls, 7th instant, to the Board of Works, requesting that a sum of Eight thousand pounds (8,000*l.*) may be appropriated for the wire doors, &c., in the new Repository, in the present year, pursuant to their Lordships' Minute of the 20th April last. See below.

I have, &c.

Sir C. E. Trevelyan, K.C.B. (signed) F. Palgrave.
&c. &c.

Sir, Rolls House, 7 May 1855.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge your letter of the 26th April 1855, and the Treasury Minute of the 20th April 1855, accompanying the same, informing me of their Lordships' opinion, that the expenditure of Twenty-four thousand nine hundred and five pounds (24,905), which they are willing to sanction for the purpose of providing wire doors, &c., for the presses in the new Repository, should be thrown over the space of three years, as suggested by me, and I have accordingly to request that a sum of Eight thousand pounds (8,000*l.*) may be appropriated for such purpose in the current year.

Having carefully considered the matter, I am of opinion that a considerable saving may be effected by dispensing with backs as to those presses which will stand parallel with the walls of the repository rooms, and very nearly adjoining, though not in actual contact, being separated only by a distance of three or four inches; and if, as I expect, this can be satisfactorily effected, the sum ultimately to be required may be reduced without inconvenience.

I have, &c.

J. Thornborrow, Esq. (signed) John Romilly.

Note.—A Bill having been introduced into the House of Commons, in the present Session, to enable the Government to carry out the Scheme for the New Buildings, it is proposed to refer the Plans and Estimates, along with the Bill, to a Select Committee of The House.

DOWNING-STREET IMPROVEMENT AND PUBLIC OFFICES EXTENSION.

THE providing proper accommodation for the Foreign and Colonial Departments, by the erection of suitable offices on the vacant ground in Downing-street and in St. James's Park, formed the subject of inquiry before a Select Committee of the House of Commons, which sat in the year 1839.

In the Report of that Committee, dated 29th July 1839, it is stated, "That it appears to this Committee, from the evidence they have taken, and also from their own personal inspection, that the buildings now occupied by the Foreign Office and the Colonial Office, consisting originally of eight private houses, are inadequate to the present extent of public business, in parts unsafe, and generally in such a state of dilapidation as to render it inexpedient to expend any large sum upon their substantial repair." "That it is expedient to build a new Foreign Office and a new Colonial Office, and that such buildings ought to provide adequate fireproof depositories for the public papers of the said departments." "That, subject to the consent and approbation of Her Majesty, an area may be now obtained from the Park, consisting in great part of an enclosed space, to which the public have at present no admission, which area would afford an adequate site for the erection of a new Foreign Office and a new Colonial Office."

"That it is expedient that any building to be erected for the Foreign Office and the Colonial Office shall form part of a general plan for the occupation of the whole area comprehended in Downing-street, Fludyer-street, and the said portion of the Park, with a view to the propriety of providing for the future accommodation of other public offices, at present occupying apartments inadequate to their wants, located at an inconvenient distance, and for which rent is now paid."

Since the year 1839, this subject has been, at various times, under the consideration of the Government; the buildings occupied by the Foreign and Colonial Departments have become more unsafe and dilapidated, notwithstanding the repairs which have been made; they are now totally inadequate to afford the necessary accommodation; and the Foreign Office especially requires to be immediately and considerably extended, either by temporary or by permanent buildings.

By direction of the Chief Commissioner of Her Majesty's Works, &c., a survey was recently made of the Foreign and Colonial Offices, and also of the other buildings between Downing-street and the Treasury Chambers. The officers of the Board of Works who were employed in making it, namely, Mr. Inman and Mr. Phipps, are of opinion that the rooms in the Foreign and Colonial Offices, with the exception of a few apartments on the principal floors, are unfit for office purposes, on account of the smallness of their size, the difference in the levels of the floors, and other disadvantages. They further state, that some of the buildings are very inferior in character; that the walls, having in places been cut through through for the purpose of forming communications, have become weakened; that there are considerable settlements in portions of the buildings, and where these have taken place it has been necessary, in order to render the buildings safe for habitation, to have recourse extensively to the use of iron ties, suspension rods, and shoring; that in consequence of the sinking of the floors of the rooms in which the books and papers were formerly kept, it has been found necessary to remove them into rooms and vaults in the basement, the latter of which are particularly unhealthy and inconvenient for the workmen employed in printing and bookbinding. They also state, that the principal apartments of the Foreign Office are unsafe, and obliged to be supported by shores whenever used for large parties; that within the last 10 years a subsidence took place in the foundation of that portion of the building in which the Cabinet Councils are held, which rendered necessary the reconstruction of one of the walls on a new foundation, and that considerable expense has been incurred from time to time in the maintenance of the buildings, and in adapting them for the requirements of the departments. Mr. Inman and Mr. Phipps report also respecting the official residences of the First Lord of the Treasury and of the Chancellor of the Exchequer, that, notwithstanding the fronts towards the Park have been rebuilt, the buildings are old, and were built probably about 200 years ago; and that several of the large chimney stacks have settled, causing settlements in the internal walls. And these gentlemen state, lastly, their opinion with regard to all the buildings referred to, that it would be more beneficial to the public service to pull them down and to construct in their place new offices planned to meet the wants of each department, than to incur any further considerable outlay in adding to or altering the existing structures.

The aforementioned facts, with the pressing demands of the Foreign Department and of the Board of Trade for increased accommodation, appeared to the Chief Commissioner of Works to render it necessary that measures should be taken without further delay for giving effect to the recommendations of the Select Committee of 1839, in so far as they relate to providing new offices for the Foreign and Colonial and other Departments on the vacant ground in Downing-street; but he was of opinion that the plans laid before that Committee, if carried out, would not furnish all the official accommodation which at the present time it is expedient to provide in the locality, and that the proposal to appropriate a portion of St. James's Park to building purposes would be very objectionable, and one which ought not to be entertained while sufficient ground can be obtained by purchase in the immediate neighbourhood. The Chief Commissioner therefore thought it right to cause new plans to be prepared by Mr. Pennethorne, the architect of his department, for buildings to be erected upon the site recommended by the Committee of 1839, with the exception of the portion proposed to be obtained by the curtailment of St. James's Park. The Chief Commissioner also directed the plan of the new offices to be so arranged that they might be built progressively, and that each might be completed, and made fit for occupation before the department for which it was intended should be required to remove from any part of their present offices; because even one removal of an important public office is found to be very inconvenient to the public service; but by more than one removal, or by several partial removals, the expense would be much increased; the documents would be thrown into extreme confusion; great loss of time would be occasioned; many delays in business would arise, and arrears might be created that it would require years to recover. The block plans annexed hereto show that the Architect to fulfil these instructions has proposed to build round Downing-street, to convert it into a quadrangle 250 feet long by 155 feet wide, and to place the centre of the west side of the quadrangle directly opposite the approach from Whitehall.

By arranging the offices round an enclosed quadrangle, the privacy desirable for the transaction of the business of public departments would be best provided for, and the new offices would be built without any very considerable interruption or inconvenience to the business of the departments. To obtain sites for these new buildings, it would be necessary to purchase the houses in Fluyder-street and Crown-street, as recommended by the Committee of 1839; and also to build upon the greater portion of the private garden west of the Treasury Chambers, now attached to the official residences; but St. James's Park would not be encroached upon. The block plans annexed hereto explain the general principles of the design.

The total cost of the undertaking, including the erection of the buildings, the purchasing of the properties, and a sum of 25,000 l. for fittings, would be 585,000 l., according to the estimate of the Architect annexed hereto, that sum being inclusive of a sum of 54,000 l. for purchase of the properties part of the Land Revenues of the Crown.

See next page.

The amount of funds required to be voted annually would depend on the expedition with which it might be deemed expedient to carry on the works in question. The more rapidly they are executed the better it would be for the public service, as far as the departments affected are concerned. It is proposed to commence immediately with the Foreign Office, on account of the dilapidated condition of the present building, the great inconvenience experienced by that department in the transaction of their business for want of space, and the greater facility of obtaining the site, part of which is now vacant. For the execution of this work, a vote of 90,000 l. would be wanted this year; the estimated cost of the new Foreign Office being 60,000 l., and the sum required for the purchase of property being 30,000 l.

COMPENSATION awarded by the Mixed Commission under the Convention of 3d February 1853.

AN ESTIMATE of the Sum required to be Voted in the Year 1855 ending 31st March 1856, for Payment to the United States Government of the Amounts awarded to American Claimants under the above Convention.

Sixty-eight Thousand One Hundred and Thirty-one Pounds.

BY a Convention concluded at London on the 3d February 1853, between Her Majesty and the United States of America, which was laid before Parliament on the 19th of August of that year, it was agreed that all outstanding claims of either Government upon the other on behalf of its subjects or citizens, should be referred for settlement to a Mixed Commission, consisting of one Commissioner to be appointed by each party, whose decisions should be final and without appeal.

The Commissioners appointed in pursuance of that Commission met in London in September 1853, and concluded their labours in January 1855. One hundred and fourteen distinct claims were presented for their decision, and the result is, that compensation, amounting to 68,131 l. 0 s. 7 ½ d., has been awarded to claimants of the United States, and compensation, amounting to 57,252 l. 13 s. 4 d., to British claimants.

TREASURY MINUTE, dated March 1855.

13 & 14 Vict. c. 52. 15 & 16 Vict. c. 55. 16 & 17 Vict. c. 134.

MY Lords have before them a statement, showing the advances made from time to time out of the account of Civil Contingencies for the payment of salaries and expenses incurred under the Metropolis Interments Acts. These advances amount on the whole to 9,927*l.* 5*s.* 6*d.* up to 31 December 1854 inclusive.

The Act 13 & 14 Vict., c. 52, (passed 5 August 1850) provides (sections 42 & 43) for the payment of expenses out of fees and sums to be received under the Act; but the Act was never carried out, and the fees have not been forthcoming.

This Act was repealed in 1852, by the Act 15 & 16 Vict., c. 85, (passed 1 July 1852) and no provision seems to have been made therein for the payment of expenses, except that it provides for the continuance of the additional member of the Board of Health (who was appointed under the Act first quoted), and for payment of his salary in the same way as the other salaries of the Board of Health; the salary of Dr. Southwood Smith was accordingly inserted from that date in the Estimate for the General Board of Health, at the rate of 1,200*l.* a year. The remuneration of the inspectors, however, and the other expenses under the Acts 15 & 16 Vict., c. 85, and 16 & 17 Vict., c. 134, which have been incurred by the authority of the Secretary of State for the Home Department, and not under the Board of Health, have been defrayed out of Civil Contingencies as "Advances to be repaid."

The sum of 9,927*l.* 5*s.* 6*d.* before quoted, consists therefore—

1st. Of the salary of the additional member of the Board of Health, and of other Officers under the Act 13 & 14 Vict., c. 52, for the period from 5 August 1850 to 1 July 1852, and,

2d. Of the remuneration to the Inspectors and other expenses, under the Acts 15 & 16 Vict, c 85, and 16 & 17 Vict., c. 134, which are still being incurred, but for which no provision has been made by Parliament.

My Lords are of opinion that the time has arrived when an Estimate should be submitted to the House of Commons for the purpose of repaying to Civil Contingencies the sums so advanced.

Let an Estimate be prepared accordingly.

(No. 1.)

Extracts of a Despatch from Governor Sir George Grey to the Secretary of State, dated Government House, Cape Town, 22 December 1854, No. 7.

"I have the honour to report for your information the measures I propose to adopt with a view of preserving tranquillity in this country, and of holding out some reasonable expectation that at the close of a few years Great Britain may be freed from that constant anxiety and expense which South Africa has for so long a period of time entailed upon it.

"I should premise, however, that I can only attempt at present successfully to carry these measures into operation in the event of my having the advantage of the continuance for a few months of a state of tranquillity amongst the border tribes, as if a war breaks out it will be difficult for me to preserve that degree of intercourse with the chiefs which will be necessary to make them co-operate in my measures.

"Upon reference to the Commissariat Department, I am informed that the cost of the last Kafir war was at the rate of about 1,000,000*l.* per annum; besides this heavy annual charge, that war was the cause of constant demands being made on England for troops. For reasons which I have detailed in other despatches, the next war in South Africa, if one does unhappily take place, will be both more expensive than the last war, and will call for an increased force. When the late Kafir war prevailed, England was not engaged in a great struggle with a European power, which demanded her undivided attention and the application of large resources. Under existing circumstances I feel that if Great Britain is harassed with an expensive and most troublesome war in this remote portion of her possessions, the anxieties and troubles of Her Majesty's Government will be very largely increased. It is consequently my duty to make every effort to prevent so untoward a circumstance taking place as Great Britain becoming involved at the present moment in a struggle with the allied Fingoe and Kafir races."

"Our general position is now, and may be said for some time past to have been simply an armed truce; every day expecting a blow to be struck against us, although the precise moment when this will be done cannot be ascertained. In the meantime we remain on our guard, harassed by suspicions, which are almost certain to produce the very evils at which they point; and no general plan is in operation to produce a better state of things for the future, or to clear off the difficulties which threaten us. Indeed, from day to day intercourse with the native tribes appears to diminish, and distrust of them to increase. Such a state of things can but result ultimately in great disaster.

"A financial despatch which I am preparing for transmission to you will show that the present position of the finances of the colony is such, that although it will enable the Colonial Parliament to provide so largely for the increased defence of the frontier, as to render us, I hope, sufficiently strong, with the present military force, to overawe and control the Kafir and other wavering tribes, without making any further demands upon Great Britain for troops, still that there is not more than 3,000 l. available from colonial sources for any expenditure beyond the limits of the colony in aid of any general plan of policy which may have for its object the final and conclusive settlement of the difficulties which have for so long a time prevailed in South Africa, and the relief of Great Britain from the enormous military expenditure which these difficulties have entailed upon her.

"The plan I propose to pursue with a view to the general adjustment of these questions is to attempt to gain an influence over all the tribes included between the present north-eastern boundary of this colony and Natal, by employing them upon public works which will tend to open up their country; by establishing institutions for the education of their children, and the relief of their sick; by introducing amongst them institutions of a civil character suited to their present condition; and by these and other like means to attempt gradually to win them to civilization and Christianity, and thus to change by degrees our at present unconquered, and apparently irreclaimable, foes into friends who may have common interests with ourselves.

"To accomplish this will require a considerable immediate expenditure of money, and some lengthened period of time; but I feel little doubt that within eight or ten years from the present date the work might be so far accomplished, that no further assistance would be required from any extraneous source, and that Great Britain might look to be relieved shortly to a great extent from all further care and expense connected with this colony.

"In the meantime it is to the British Parliament alone that assistance can be looked for to carry out such a plan. Its cost, I estimate, will be for the present 45,000 l. per annum, of which 40,000 l. would require to be furnished by Great Britain; but in about three years reductions might be made in that amount, and after that time the charge would be less every year. In a financial point of view, this plan would clearly be the means of effecting a large saving to Great Britain. The sum I have named for the annual expenditure to attain such important objects is altogether inconsiderable, compared with the cost of a single month of war.

"But in my present position, I do not feel that I should be justified in even viewing the subject under so narrow an aspect as that of a mere financial question. I feel that it is my duty at all risks to save my country at the present moment from a war, which would make a large and serious drain upon her military resources of every kind, and I rely upon the most generous construction being put by Parliament on every act of mine which may have a tendency to produce such a result. If, therefore, I should upon my arrival upon the frontier find that in order to avert an immediately threatening war it is necessary for me at once to enter upon the plan I have sketched out, I shall do so, trusting to Her Majesty's Government to explain fully to Parliament the cause of my having adopted such a proceeding, and to recommend them to make good the expenditure which I shall have incurred.

"It only remains for me to add, that should Parliament determine finally to sanction and provide for the plan I have proposed, I feel quite satisfied from inquiries which I have made that the Colonial Parliament will perform zealously and willingly their part of such a plan, by liberally and largely providing for the defence of their own frontier, which is certainly now in a very insufficiently protected state; and this providing on their part will be the means of to a great extent meeting the anxieties and expense which would spring from the continued existence of the present state of affairs."

EXTRACT of a DESPATCH from Sir George Grey to the Governor of the Cape of Good Hope, dated Downing-street, 12th March 1855, No. 12.

"With reference to the measures which in your despatch, No. 7, of 22d December, you inform me that you had in contemplation in order to secure this important object, I have to assure you of the cordial approval of Her Majesty's Government of the general plan which you desire to pursue, and they would rejoice to see the accomplishment of such a change as you anticipate in the relations subsisting between the colonists and the native tribes. As to the means by which you think this end might be gained, I can only at present say, that the experience which you have acquired in your past intercourse with native tribes who have been brought in contact with British colonists, and the salutary influence you have gained with them, entitles your opinion to the greatest weight, and that any proposal which, after full deliberation, and with the knowledge you will have acquired during your visit to the frontier, you may feel it your duty to make, will receive the immediate and careful consideration of Her Majesty's Government."

EXTRACT of a LETTER from Herman Merivale, Esq., to Sir C. E. Trevelyan, dated Downing-street, 14th May 1855.

"Lord John Russell requests that you will state to the Lords Commissioners of the Treasury, that when he reflects upon the enormous expense which has been incurred by this country for Kafir wars, with a constant apprehension of fresh outbreaks too likely to recur, and the success with which the present Governor of the Cape carried into effect his measures for the civil and religious advancement of the natives of New Zealand, his Lordship considers that the Governor's opinions on this subject are entitled to the greatest weight, and he would therefore strongly recommend that the British Parliament should be asked to sanction the expenditure required to give full effect to the Governor's views."

His Excellency the Governor's ADDRESS to the Legislative Council and the House of Assembly, at the opening of the Second Session of the Colonial Parliament.

Mr. President and Gentlemen of the Legislative Council:

Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the House of Assembly:

IT gives me great pleasure to see thus collected round me those who are, by local knowledge and experience, so eminently qualified to aid and advise me in the difficult duties which the Queen has been pleased to entrust to me.

To you, as the freely chosen representatives of Her Majesty's subjects in South Africa, I can look with confidence for an expression of their wants and wishes. Upon your wisdom I can unhesitatingly rely, either to devise the necessary measures to give effect to those wishes, or so to modify those which I may propose for your consideration, as to adapt them to the circumstances of the country, and to the feelings of its inhabitants. Further, I rely confidently that your feelings of patriotism and affectionate loyalty to your Sovereign will lead you, in the present crisis of the affairs of Europe, to attempt, by all the means in your power, to render this country rather a source of strength and pride to Great Britain than such a cause for anxiety and alarm as it has hitherto been.

Already the people of South Africa have, by a munificent and noble subscription, shown their sympathy with those brave men who are sacrificing their lives and energies to bring to a successful issue the great contest on which their country has entered. Such an instance of bountiful generosity on the part of her subjects in South Africa, given at a moment of great individual loss and suffering to themselves, will prove most consolatory and gratifying to the Queen, more especially from the connexion existing between this colony and the late Sir George Cathcart,—for you are aware that Her Majesty had repeatedly and warmly expressed her approval of the services of your late Governor, who, after a life of public usefulness, and after such eminent services rendered to this country, has recently fallen, by an untimely but most glorious death, in the very moment of victory,—the comrade in arms of those, to relieve the wants of whose families this colony has now so nobly subscribed.

You, acting in your legislative capacity, will, I am sure, still further encourage and fortify your Sovereign, by showing your determination that the affairs of this country shall be administered with a view to the welfare of Her whole empire, and not upon the narrow and restricted principles which would measure every question with a view to mere local interests or prejudices.

You are aware that the British territories in South Africa consist of two portions. One of these, British Kaffraria, lies beyond your jurisdiction and control; its government and affairs may at present be said to be administered by myself, as Her Majesty's High Commissioner. The other portion constitutes the colony of the Cape of Good Hope. That district I can, on Her Majesty's behalf, only govern with your consent and advice, and in accordance with your views and wishes. Beyond these two portions of territories lie other States, forming independent powers, ruled by persons of European descent, or by chiefs of the native races. Over all such territories Her Majesty's High Commissioner can, by advice or otherwise, exercise a greater or less degree of influence, in respect of which he is not responsible to this Legislature. But in any attempt to carry out plans which, instead of only aiming at maintaining on the frontier a temporary, momentary peace, and at a mere putting off for the instant of imminent danger, embrace within their grasp views for the ultimate security and greatness of the whole territory of South Africa,—which contemplate its existence as a real power, which may hereafter bless and influence large portions of this vast continent,—it is essential that there should be no divided views between the several authorities who can bring about such a desirable state of things, no conflicting legislation for minute portions of the country, no petty jealousies regarding the exact limits of separate authorities. On the contrary, all who are interested in the future of this country, and who have the power to influence it, should have before them a distinct plan which all are anxious to see realised,—in the carrying out of which all are eager to co-operate.

I shall, therefore, unhesitatingly, lay before you the line of policy I propose to pursue in British Kaffraria, and my views in reference to the countries which lie beyond our border. Should these be adverse to the interests of the Cape Colony, or opposed to the feelings and interests of its inhabitants, you, their chosen representatives, can advise me of this, and counsel me as to the modifications which you think desirable. Should, however, my views be in accordance with your own, and such as must, in your opinion, promote the prosperity of South Africa, then you, as the depositaries of the revenues and resources of this colony, can render me the most material aid.

I propose that we should dismiss from our minds the idea of attempting to establish, or maintain, a system of frontier policy, based upon the idea of retaining a vacant tract of territory, intervening between ourselves and a barbarous race beyond it, who are to be left in their existing state, without any systematic efforts being made to reclaim and civilize them. The necessary results of such a policy appear to me to be, that such a people as the Kafirs, so abandoned to themselves, will break in upon us whenever it suits their caprice or convenience, whilst the vacant territory would afford a convenient place for them to harbour in, until they ascertained upon what point of our frontier they could most readily and profitably direct their blows, and ultimately an easy and unoccupied line of escape for them into their own country, with the booty which they might have secured.

I would rather that we should, with full, yet humble, confidence, accept the duties and responsibilities of our position, that we should admit that we cannot live in immediate contact with any race or portion of our fellow-men, whether civilized or uncivilized, neglecting and ignoring our duties towards them, without suffering those evils which form the fitting punishment of our neglect and indifference; that we should feel that if we leave the natives beyond our border ignorant barbarians, shut out from all community of interest with ourselves, they must always remain a race of troublesome marauders, and that, feeling this, we should try to make them a part of ourselves, with a common faith and common interests, useful servants, consumers of our goods, contributors to our revenue; in short, a source of strength and wealth for this colony, such as Providence designed them to be. What, therefore, I propose in this respect is, that, availing ourselves of the fertility of British Kaffraria, and its power of maintaining a dense population, we should fill it up with a considerable number of Europeans, of a class fitted to increase our strength in that country, and that, at the same time, unremitting efforts should be made to raise the Kafirs in Christianity and civilization, by the establishment among them, and beyond our boundary, of missions connected with industrial schools, by employing them on public works, and by other similar means.

Should this plan be carried out, our ultimate frontier defence would be a fertile and populous country, filled with a large population, partly European, partly native;—the Europeans, reared in the country, acquainted with its inhabitants, and their mode of warfare; the natives, won by our exertions to Christianity, trained by us in agriculture and in simple arts, possessing property of their own, and a stake in the country, accustomed to our laws, and aware of their advantages,—attached to us from a sense of benefits received,—respecting us for our strength and generosity.

The native races beyond our boundary, influenced as they would be by our missionaries, instructed in our schools, benefiting by our trade, would be likely to attempt but little against such a frontier, occupied to a great extent by their own race and countrymen, whose example they would be desirous of emulating and imitating. Did they, however, attempt any enterprise against it, a mixed European and native population, such as I have described, could more readily repel and punish them than any other description of force.

The means by which I hope that this may be accomplished are as follows: Firstly, with regard to the military protection of the country, and the introduction of an increased European population, I propose that men from the enrolled pensioners in England should be allowed to volunteer for service in South Africa, under the admirable system devised by Earl Grey.

If this plan is sanctioned by the Home Government, the men enrolled will never exceed 45 years of age. They will be medically approved of as fit for the occasional military duties required of them. They will be carefully selected from that class of men whose services are most likely to be valuable in new countries. They will be all married men, the maximum of their families being five; and with their wives and families they will have a free passage given them to this country.

Upon their arrival, they will be located, with their officers, in the immediate vicinity of a military post; each man will have an acre of good land, with a cottage upon it, allotted to him; and their villages will be so arranged, that they will, whenever practicable, form, together with the military post, a continuous series of defences.

The conditions of their service will be, that they serve for seven years; that they never go more than five miles from their village; that they assemble under arms for church parade every Sunday; that they serve 12 days in every year without pay, whenever called on for that purpose; and at all other times, when called out, for a stipulated rate of pay. At the termination of their seven years' service, they will receive a free grant of their cottage and acre of land

I have

I have already recommended that 1,000 men and their families should, under this system, be sent out for location on the frontier and in British Kaffraria, and I propose that, ultimately, this force should be increased to 5,000 men.

It is probable that so large an increase to our European population, and the advantages to which I will presently advert, as resulting from the introduction of pensioners into the colony, would, in conjunction with the other measures which will be taken for the control and improvement of the Kafirs, prevent any war of magnitude from again breaking out. Should these expectations, however, be disappointed, the pensioners would then form the garrisons of the military posts, and the whole military force would be set free for operations against the enemy, and thus enable the Government to carry on the war with greater vigour and effect than it has ever hitherto been able to do.

Other great advantages will follow from this system of introducing European immigrants. The pensioners enrolled for service are capable of defending the country; they cannot leave it for seven years; their children are not likely to desert the home of their parents, whilst they will afford excellent recruits for our border police force, and a nursery of servants and labourers for the colonists. The outlay caused by the introduction of these pensioners, and the constant expenditure of their pensions, as well as the value that will be given to all property from increased security, and so largely increased a population, will give a great stimulus to trade and enterprise, which will be felt in every portion of the colony.

I even hope that the increased demand for agricultural produce and stock, as well as for native labour, which will follow such an increase to our European population, will tend materially to occupy the minds of the natives, and to lead to a permanent improvement in their condition.

It seems certain that the increased security that will by this system be afforded to life and property, and the general prosperity which will be imparted to the colony, will then render it a fit and attractive field for general European immigration, which would be likely to be drawn to a colony already affording such vast natural resources, and which would then promise to those who might enter it the secure and peaceable enjoyment of the fruits of their industry.

In order ultimately to defray, in part, the expenses of introducing these military emigrants, it is intended, as the sites of the pensioner settlements will generally adjoin to, or form a part of, what is now a considerable village, and will probably form a future town, to reserve an acre of land for every one which is granted to a pensioner. Ultimately, when the increase of population from the location of the pensioners on the spot has given an increased value to the land, the reserved acres will be sold in lots, to pay in part the expenses which have been incurred. Thus the expenditure caused by carrying out the plan will be, in a great part, merely an advance made at the moment, to be repaid at no very distant date.

I trust that, in order to effect a large future reduction of military expenditure, the Home Government will not hesitate to make, to a considerable extent, the advances necessary to give effect to the recommendations I have made; but I think also that you would act wisely in authorising some part of these advances to be made from colonial revenues, and you would be amply repaid by so doing, in a public point of view, from the great increase of revenue which you would derive from your augmented population, and from the increased native trade; in a private point of view, by the greatly increased value which would be given to property of every kind by such a system as I have described.

I will cause to be laid before you copies of the conditions under which I have recommended that pensioners should be enrolled for service in South Africa. They are the conditions under which pensioners were enrolled for similar service in New Zealand, so altered as to suit the circumstances of this colony. In the former country, the plan worked in the most successful and satisfactory manner, but with the experience I there acquired, I think I could make it even still more successful and satisfactory in South Africa. If the plan is sanctioned by the Home Government, I will exert myself to the utmost to make it productive of advantage to this country, and beneficial to the interests of the men who may volunteer to serve here.

To aid in this system of defence for the frontier, I must look to you for such an increase in the existing mounted police force as will adequately provide for the wants of the frontier in that respect. I shall propose for your consideration a law, which will bestow a new organization upon that corps, and will enable the Government to render it a most efficient and formidable body.

I earnestly recommend you, in providing funds for organizing and equipping that force, to leave to the Government the power of making the necessary increase in it, not hurriedly, but from time to time, as fitting candidates present themselves; as I think a considerable time must elapse before it can be judiciously raised to its full complement. I also recommend you to leave to the Government the discretionary power of employing it either within the colony, or beyond the boundary, as it may judge most expedient. The object of the force is to secure the safety of the colony, and of its inhabitants; and the Government should be allowed to employ it where, and in that manner which will best attain those ends.

I must also leave it to your wisdom to make such provision for the defence of the colony by by a burgher force as you may judge most prudent. If you place such a force at the disposal of the Government, it will endeavour to exercise the powers thus confided to it in such a manner as may best secure the safety of the people of the country, without interfering vexatiously or unnecessarily with their interests or pursuits.

I must yet notice another force, enrolled for the defence of the frontier. I allude to the Fingo Militia, four companies of which are kept enrolled, and paid, as nuclei, around which larger corps may be immediately formed, in case of the actual invasion of the colony. I trust that such a force may not be permanently necessary, although there are great difficulties in the way of immediately disbanding it. I think also that, by some modifications in its organization, it might be made much more useful than at present. I propose, therefore, to endeavour to carry out arrangements, under which the men enrolled in this force, whilst retaining their present character of a militia, may be employed on public works, receiving for these extra duties a small rate of working-pay.

Such a change in the organization of the Fingo Militia will render it far more useful to the colony, and it will gradually train the men to habits of industry and of useful occupation.

I have now gone through the system of border defence, which I propose should be adopted—a system which, while it will immediately place the Government in a position of far greater strength than it has ever before occupied, and will thus discourage, and I trust altogether prevent, another invasion of the colony, will, at the same time, by the introduction of a large European population, prepare the way for our gradually lessening our demands for military aid upon Great Britain, and of finally depending altogether upon our own resources.

Little would, however, be done if we stopped here. We should, I think, use our time of strength, when our generosity cannot be misunderstood, to instruct and civilize; to change inveterate enemies into friends, alike from interest and from increased knowledge; destroyers of our stock and produce, into consumers of our goods, and producers for our markets.

With much experience of the subject, I feel entirely certain that this can be accomplished. The means by which I propose to attempt it are, as I have already stated, the encouragement of missions, connected with industrial schools, in which the natives may be trained in Christian doctrines, and at the same time instructed in the arts of civilized life, which institutions I hope to see spread far beyond our frontier; the establishment of hospitals, where the sick of the native race, as well as Europeans, may be carefully tended, and of other such like charitable institutions; the employment of adult natives upon public works, which will, in fact, form also industrial schools, where they will be trained to perform operations of industry, and to use implements with which they are now almost entirely unacquainted.

My views with regard to the encouragement of the missions, and the establishment of industrial schools, have already been so fully laid before you, that I need enter into no details upon these points; but I must express my deep gratitude to the bishops and clergy of this colony, of every denomination, for the earnestness, zeal, and disinterested generosity with which they have already aided me to introduce this system. With such instruments to carry out what all must feel to be a sacred duty, there can, I think, be no doubt of our ultimate success.

With regard to the employment of natives on public works, I should state that I find a great, growing desire amongst the natives to be employed on such works. This I regard as an excellent sign for the future; for as the natives will not only be paid, but will also be rationed on articles such as the natives themselves produce, a spur will be given to the industry even of those who are not employed by the Government, from a ready market for their produce being brought to their own doors.

The present opportunity for commencing this system is also a most favourable one, since the large losses of cattle which the natives have sustained from the lung-sickness have reduced some of them to want, and these will all thankfully receive the assistance which the public works will afford them; whilst the natives generally have learnt a severe lesson from the prevailing cattle sickness, and have found that they can no longer with safety depend upon their cattle alone, but must also have recourse to agriculture as a means of procuring a certain subsistence.

Whilst, therefore, the native population will so largely benefit by the system of employing them upon public works, the European population will not be less benefited thereby, especially by the trade which will be created in so many directions between themselves and the natives, by the expenditure, on the part of the natives, of the sums which they have earned on the works, or by the sale of their produce for rations; whilst from this trade, again, will also necessarily spring a friendly commercial intercourse between the races, based upon mutual advantage and convenience, which, continued for a few years, cannot but tend to cement a lasting union between them; whilst the public works executed will prove a source of future revenue and wealth to the country, and will throw open its various resources to the European population which will, I hope, be established there under the arrangements I have already detailed to you.

In

In order that a proper development may be given to these efforts for the moral training and elevation of the native population, it is necessary that they should be carried on simultaneously beyond the border, and within the border, for the fact cannot be concealed that if the Fingo population is neglected, that race, which might be such valuable friends, may become formidable enemies.

I have, therefore, recommended Her Majesty's Government to separate entirely British Kaffraria from this colony, and to provide for a few years for the expenditure in that province, by means of a grant from the British Legislature, upon the same plan which was adopted with such happy success in New Zealand; leaving those funds reserved in this colony for aboriginal purposes to be spent entirely for the improvement and civilization of the natives within the colony, as I am satisfied that where such great exertions are to be made, the resources of the colony will not more than supply its own necessary demands, and that especially at a time when it is called upon to make such efforts to provide a police force sufficient to meet the requirements of the frontier.

In reference to the countries lying beyond the limits of British territory, I propose, wherever it is possible, and where the people are willing to receive them, to encourage the spread of industrial schools, in connexion with those which lie within our limits.

I ought not to conceal from you that I feel much anxiety regarding the future of the republics recently established in our vicinity. It is much to be feared that, from their weakness, they will find great difficulties in working out, unaided, their own prosperity and happiness, and that they may involve themselves, this colony, and the native tribes, in very serious troubles. I can only hope that the anxiety we may evince for their welfare, and the generosity which this Government will exhibit towards them, may be such as to win their attachment and regard, and to convince them that their interests and our own are, in fact, identical, and that the more closely they can unite themselves with us, the stronger and more prosperous they, together with ourselves, will be,—the more efficiently shall we all execute our duties in reference to the numerous inhabitants of the interior of this continent.

It might, I think, be even now in your power to do much for these republics. The great majority of the inhabitants of those countries are members of the Dutch Reformed Church. Travelling through this country, and contrasting it with other colonies, inhabited by a widely dispersed population, where only very limited means of religious instruction and supervision existed, I have been much struck by observing how powerful an influence the system of government and discipline of the Dutch Reformed Church exercises over the morals and conduct of its members. In a very scattered community, removed from the watchful control of a Government, the discipline and system of that Church imposes regularity, decency, order, and propriety of conduct, and, in fact, fulfils many of the functions of Government and law, besides affording an admirable machinery by which new settlements may be thrown off from the old stock. To provide, therefore, for an efficient ministry, which would follow and minister to the members of that Church, as they spread over the distant portions of this continent, is a most important consideration. I think, therefore, you would confer an inestimable benefit upon South Africa, if you could, in your wisdom, devise a system which would enable you to bring this about. Perhaps you might establish in some educational institution in the colony one or more well-endowed theological chairs, the professors for which should be chosen by the Synod of the Dutch Reformed Church.

If this were done, youths born in any part of South Africa might then be educated here for the ministry of that Church; want of the means to defray the cost of giving a child a European education would then not prevent parents from striving to train up a talented and well-disposed son for the ministry. The Dutch Reformed Church would be enabled to avail itself of much of piety and talent which now runs to comparative waste, and the best and most virtuous of the youth of our race inhabiting the colony would have the satisfaction of knowing that although their parents were comparatively poor, still it was now in their power to afford them an education which would enable them to follow those of their countrymen who were advancing further and further into the interior, and from the means of instruction, with the consolations of religion, the faith of their forefathers, and the elements of human learning. Any efforts that you may make to secure for those who were so recently your fellow-countrymen advantages which will so materially influence their future, cannot but gain for you their gratitude; and so improving and raising them must evidently produce many advantages for yourselves.

Such is the outline of the system for securing the future tranquillity and prosperity of the frontier, and of the countries beyond it, which I recommend for your consideration. The plan may seem large, but I believe that anything less would not accomplish the object sought for, and therefore would be simply so much thrown away. If the plan is extensive, so is the object to be accomplished. We have to put an end to wars, the cost of which is reckoned by millions; to prevent irruptions into our territories, which have become almost periodical, each of which impoverishes a colony and spreads an amount of private disaster and loss, the money value of which it would be very difficult to ascertain. The cost of all I recommend will, either to the mother-country or the colony, be but trifling compared to two months of war, whilst the expenditure it involves is not immediate, but is spread over a space of several years. The amount disbursed will not be wasted, but will fructify for all time.

A subject which involves the expenditure of such large sums as are absorbed by wars in this country, upon which depends so great an amount of private wealth, on which hangs the safety of so many lives, and the future fate of a large portion of a great continent, is one regarding which the plain truth must be spoken. I do not pretend that I can undertake such large objects as are contemplated without sufficient means. I cannot venture to attempt to mislead such great interests with delusive hopes. I have, therefore, stated openly and without reserve the means that I think necessary for the purposes which are to be brought about; with those means I see my way clearly to a happy end, and will hold myself responsible for the result.

I now turn to the other portions of the colony. If the system which I have recommended for the settlement of the frontier is carried out, then the frontier will exhibit a life, a movement, and a trade, to meet which corresponding preparations must be made in the other districts.

The form of government of the Eastern districts will be the first question to occupy your attention. You will find, from the papers which will be laid before you, that this, in a great measure, will rest with yourselves. Her Majesty's Government have sanctioned the appointment of a Lieutenant-governor for the colony of the Cape of Good Hope, to whom I was directed to delegate certain necessary powers. Although the plan under which the Lieutenant-governor is to act, in subordination to the Governor, is not very perfectly arranged, I have done my utmost, in obedience to my instructions, so to carry it out that it may work as well as possible for the public service. I think that arrangements have now been made which will meet your immediate wants; but they will certainly hereafter require revision.

In reference to this subject, I should remind you that a difficulty has long been experienced in regard to the inadequacy of the present judicial establishment of the Supreme Court to meet the wants of the entire colony, by carrying the advantages of the circuit system and of a prompt administration of justice into its remoter districts.

It seems to have been admitted by all parties that, in order to bring the Circuit Court system into full operation, some great changes were necessary. I have thought that these advantages could be most completely and conveniently secured by adding two to the existing number of the judges of the Supreme Court, and by so distributing the judges as to give to each end of the colony the advantages of a local court, and to facilitate the frequent and deliberate performance of circuit duty.

I propose that the territorial limits of the respective jurisdictions of the Supreme Court, and of its branch court in the Eastern Province, should be left for after consideration. Perhaps you will agree with me in thinking that this subject may be best adjusted by the Governor, by proclamations to be issued from time to time, as the convenience of the inhabitants of various districts may appear to require.

I rely that Parliament will recognise the great importance of this subject; and looking to the great, direct, and perhaps not less greater indirect, advantages of having justice openly and efficiently administered in every part of this extensive colony, by the instrumentality of the circuit system, that they will be prepared to sanction the expenses necessary to give effect to the proposed arrangements.

I should prefer seeing judges added to the Supreme Court, rather than creating a new court; because, whilst the court it is proposed to open will have every advantage which a district court would possess, the proposed court, being composed of members of the Supreme Court, will naturally be kept so in connexion with it as to prevent the possibility of conflicting systems or decisions.

In addition to this general consideration, I think that by holding the Eastern Province Court before judges of the Supreme Court, the adaptation to the former court of the existing rules and practice of the Supreme and Circuit Courts of the colony will be much facilitated.

I propose that the stated number of the judges of the court of the Eastern Province should be two; that one of these, however, should in the absence of the other be competent to adjudicate; that in case of difference of opinion between the two judges, the decision of the senior should be the decision of the court, and that a right of appeal should be reserved to the Supreme Court in Cape Town.

In subordination to these changes in the mode of administering the law, and yet closely connected with the same subject, is a measure for increasing the powers of the resident magistrates, which I shall have submitted for your consideration, and which will, I hope, secure, among other advantages, increased facilities for the settlement of questions connected with small debts, and thereby considerably facilitate commercial transactions in the remote parts of the colony.

I shall also submit for your consideration a measure which will, for the future, provide for the election of field-cornets by the inhabitants of their respective districts. In notifying this to you, I request you to consider whether the present mode of paying field-cornets for their services is a satisfactory one, and whether their efficiency might not be increased by remunerating them with a fixed salary.

In order that every facility may be given to the development of the increased trade which will, I hope, spring up under the measures proposed for your consideration, attention must be necessarily directed to the state of our harbours, and of our great lines of communication.

It is impossible to consider the subject justly, without paying attention to the recent mineral discoveries in Namaqualand—discoveries which show that at least one portion of the colony possesses stores of mineral wealth in unusual abundance, which must, under a judicious system of management, attract much capital and a large population to the country.

You will find that all doubts regarding the nature of the coast of Namaqualand, and of the facilities which it may afford for the shipment of ores, are removed by a very able report from Captain Nolloth, commanding H. M. S. "Frolic." The colony is much indebted to Commodore Trotter for the promptitude with which he despatched one of Her Majesty's vessels to examine that coast, as also to Captain Nolloth, for the ability and zeal with which he executed the service entrusted to him, and for the clear and excellent report which he has furnished of the results of his examination.

The nature and resources of the interior of that country, and its apparently great mineral wealth, have also now been clearly ascertained by the Surveyor-general, Mr. Charles Bell, who completed the examination of it under circumstances of no ordinary difficulty, and who has embodied the results of his researches in a report, drawn up with a knowledge and ability which is not only creditable to himself, but equally so to the public service of the colony of which he is a member, whilst it must undoubtedly prove of great utility to all those interested in this part of South Africa.

It will afford me much pleasure to unite with you in any measures which may facilitate the development of the mineral wealth of Namaqualand, and may render it more immediately available to the colony.

I intend to submit for your consideration a Bill amending the constitution of Boards formed for the management of harbours, and adding to their powers. I think that this measure will tend much to promote the construction of harbour improvements, and will enable the Executive Government more readily and efficiently to aid in carrying out such works, and in their maintenance in a proper state of repair.

In reference to our internal lines of communication, I earnestly recommend you to inquire into the system upon which it would be most advisable that the public roads should be constructed and maintained in repair. You will probably also think it desirable still further to increase the means of transport in this country, by availing yourselves of the remarkable natural facilities which it in many parts offers for the construction of railways. In measures which would procure such vast advantages for the country, you will find me prepared at all times most willingly to co-operate with you.

I trust that before the Session closes, you will consider whether it may not be in your power to originate some plan by which steam communication may be restored between this colony and Great Britain, and, if possible, between our colonial ports. The interruption which has taken place in the hitherto existing lines of steam communication, is a great misfortune to the colony. The Government will gladly unite with you in any efforts to repair that misfortune.

If you think it advisable, referring to the system of immigration which I have recommended for the frontier and British Kaffraria, to adopt measures for introducing an increased European population into other portions of the colony, I will gladly co-operate with you. Perhaps, however, you may think it advisable to wait for another year for this purpose, until peace having been more permanently restored, and the prosperity of the colony being more decidedly manifest, there would no longer be any probability of the persons introduced here abandoning it for another settlement.

Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the House of Assembly:

It is not my intention to submit any estimates of the public expenditure for your consideration during the present Session. A law regulating the appropriation of the revenues of the colony until the 31st December 1855 has been already passed by the Legislature. The practice hitherto pursued of submitting estimates of the proposed expenditure for your approval, at so long a period before that expenditure comes into operation, is open to such very grave objections, that I propose it should for the future be abandoned. Instead, therefore, of submitting to the Legislature, as heretofore, in one year, estimates for an expenditure which is not to take place until the following year, I propose that the Legislature should henceforth pass estimates for the expenditure of the current year.

To bring this system into operation, I propose to submit to you a Bill to authorise the appropriation of the revenue on the scale of the estimates for 1855, until Parliament provides by law for the appropriation of the revenues of 1856.

In the Session of 1856, I propose to submit, for your consideration, estimates for the appropriation of the revenue for that year, carefully prepared with a view to the circumstances and requirements of the colony at that time, which I think it is impossible at this moment so accurately to foresee as to determine in what manner the revenues should be so spent in 1856, as to produce the greatest amount of advantage to the colony.

For any further expenditure required during the present year which has not already been provided for, a supplementary estimate will be presented to you.

You are aware that the revenues at present collected in the colony are not sufficient to meet the expenditure which you have authorised the Executive Government to incur during 1855. A measure, prepared in conformity with the recommendations of your select committee, will therefore be laid before you, which provides for an increase of the duties of customs, which will give a considerable augmentation to the revenue.

It will, I think, be admitted, that it is more wise, in a country circumstanced as South Africa is, to look to indirect, instead of to direct, taxation for an increase of the revenue.

Experience has shown, that in a country whose scanty population is spread over a vast extent of territory, it is not possible to collect direct taxes, except at a cost which renders a tax, apparently light, in practice oppressive.

Moreover, in a country circumstanced as this colony, where you find barbarous or semi-barbarous tribes, either within or immediately beyond your borders, who, if they are not either influenced or controlled by the Government, become a source of constant danger to the country, it would be found extremely difficult to make such tribes defray, by direct taxation, the costs which their supervision entails upon the Government. By subjecting them, however, to indirect taxation, they will, without knowing it, and by a species of voluntary taxation, contribute largely to the charges which their government entails upon you; whilst in proportion as you raise them in the social scale, and induce them to use either the conveniences or embellishments of life, they will more largely contribute to your revenue, and enable you to take in each succeeding year more and more efficient means for their control and improvement.

Mr. President and Gentlemen of the Legislative Council:

Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the House of Assembly:

I will cause to be laid before you a correspondence with Her Majesty's Government, relating to a proposal from the President of the Orange River Free State, that an annual sum of 5,000 l. should be paid from the revenues of this colony, in aid of the expenses of the State Government, in consideration of the extent to which, it is alleged, the colonial revenue is increased by the passage through colonial ports of the trade of the Orange Free State.

Whatever you may determine upon in reference to this application from the Free State, will probably form a precedent in other similar cases of territories lying contiguous to this colony. It will, I fear, be found difficult to ascertain what subsidy, if any, each of these territories may be entitled to; and it may be doubted if the decision at which you may arrive upon a subject of this nature will ever be satisfactory to the claimants, or be such as to prevent differences arising between you and them. Perhaps a mode may hereafter be found of solving these difficulties, by leaving the decision of them to some body, composed of representatives from all parties interested in those and similar questions.

It is evident that in many questions which might arise, involving the interests of different neighbouring territories, such a body, while it need interfere with the individual independence of none, would be the means of ensuring a hearty co-operation for the common good amongst them all.

In the meantime, I hope that, in the question now to be submitted to you, and in all other instances, you will evince such a spirit of liberality and good-will towards the Free State, as may tend to draw still closer those ties of friendship and common origin which ought ever to unite us to them.

I think it right to inform you that, in compliance with the regulations of the colonial service, it has been my duty to transmit, for the purpose of being laid before the Queen, a memorial, addressed to Her Majesty by persons interested in the welfare of British Kaffraria, praying for the introduction into that territory of emigrants from the workhouses, and of free-labour convicts under judicious management.

In transmitting this memorial, I have recommended that the prayer of it should not be complied with, pointing out that the signers of it, having suffered under the misfortunes of insecurity of life and property, probably grasped eagerly at any plan that might hold out any hope of relief. When they signed it they were also ignorant of the measures I proposed, which, I feel confident, they would far rather see carried out than those they have prayed for.

I have further reported that other interests besides those of British Kaffraria had to be considered in reference to this question, especially those of the Western, and of a great part of the Eastern districts; that it should be borne in mind that looking to the importance of these districts, there is no portion of the empire which has so slight a military force left for its protection; that from the infrequency of crimes of any magnitude in these districts, their inhabitants were burthened with but very slight charges for a police force; that they are in a great measure a quiet, retired set of farmers, living surrounded by their families, and all the comforts and happinesses of domestic life, upon their widely-scattered sheep and cattle farms, thus actually realizing that tranquil and fortunate state of society which all have been so anxious to see generally established in Australia; but that their peaceful and retired habits, now a source of so many blessings to themselves, rendered them peculiarly liable to suffer from convicts being brought into their vicinity, particularly as the country they inhabit affords facilities of no ordinary kinds for the congregation of bushrangers or escaped convicts; so that I feared that the introduction of convicts into a country of such a nature, and inhabited by such a population, would entail considerable additional charges upon Great Britain for a military force for the protection of its inhabitants, heavy costs upon the colony for increased police and gaol establishments, and that, even after all these precautions had been taken, life and property might be so insecure, that a state of society, which it is now impossible to contemplate without pleasure, might be most materially disorganized, and changed for the worse.

I felt it to be my duty to state, at some length, my views upon this subject, because some persons whose opinions are in every way entitled to great respect, and who certainly were as anxious to promote the welfare of the colony as I am, have held different views upon this subject from those which I have expressed, although I think they did this from not being sufficiently informed regarding the present state of the colony.

I cannot refrain from expressing my deep sympathy for the very serious losses which the inhabitants of this colony have recently sustained from the horse sickness, and lung sickness amongst the cattle, with which grievous calamities it has pleased Almighty God to visit this country. It is beyond my power to suggest any means for relieving the distresses which have sprung from those causes; but I can assure you that I have most deeply deplored the misfortunes which I have witnessed.

In conclusion, I thank you for your attendance to transact the business of this Session. I earnestly recommend the welfare of the colony to your careful consideration, and I pray you to remember that its destiny is no light one. It must influence, for good or evil, a great portion of this vast continent, which has for so many centuries remained shut out from the rest of the world, and which contains so many millions of human beings. The question whether this influence is to be for good or evil rests now, in a great measure, in your hands. I feel that I am also now a sharer in the responsibility. My hope is, that we may ever keep this fact before us, and that together we may so act as to merit the love and gratitude of those who are to follow us.

CONTINUATION OF PALL MALL TO THE GREEN PARK.

AMOUNT proposed to be Voted in the Year 1855, ending 31 March 1856, to defray the Cost of Purchasing from the TRUSTEES of the BRIDGEWATER ESTATES a piece of Ground now occupied by Stables, which stand in the Line of the Contemplated IMPROVEMENT.

Five Thousand Eight Hundred Pounds.

The annexed Correspondence explains the object of this Vote.

My Lords, Office of Works, &c., 20 April 1855.

I BEG leave to inform your Lordships that a communication has been received by this Board from Mr. Loch, on behalf of the Trustees of the Bridgewater Estates, to the effect that the Trustees have an opportunity of selling a piece of ground at the corner of Cleveland-square (shown by red colour on the plan annexed), now occupied by the stables of the Old Bridgewater House, for the erection thereon of a large mansion, and that the estimated value of this ground is 7,000 l.; but that, previously to the disposal of it, they feel it right to place it in the power of Government to acquire the same, inasmuch as that ground will be essential to any plan that may be hereafter under consideration for the widening of the street opposite St. James's Palace, and the continuing of Pall Mall to the Green Park; and I am informed that they would rather sell at a considerably reduced price for this purpose than at the larger sum of 7,000 l. for a mansion, upon which might be expended from 30,000 l. to 40,000 l., and the effect of which would be to stop this improvement, or to increase the cost of it to above that extent.

On page 42.

Your Lordships will be aware that for several years past the continuation of Pall Mall to the Park has been under contemplation, and that when the present Bridgewater House was built arrangements were made by the Board of Woods with the Trustees for the front thereof to be set back, so as to accord with the proposed new line.

Your Lordships will, I presume, also be aware that all the houses on the north side of Cleveland-row, extending from St. James's-street to Cleveland-square (except only the stable ground now under consideration), are Crown property; that the leases of them will expire in the year 1861, and that all applications for renewals of those leases have been declined, with a view to these houses being pulled down, and the improvement made immediately after that period.

It is unnecesary for me to enlarge upon the importance of this improvement as respects the approaches to Buckingham Palace and St. James's Palace, the desirableness of increasing the open area around the latter, now so inconveniently crowded on the days of Levees and Drawing-rooms, or the opportunity it would afford for the rebuilding, at some future period, of the north front of St. James's Palace; but as respects the advantage to the public of continuing Pall Mall, I may observe that it would afford the means of forming a public thoroughfare for carriages between Pall Mall and Pimlico, the want of which is now so much felt, and which cannot be otherwise obtained, due regard being paid to the safety of the public, and the convenience and privacy of the Palace.

Considering all these circumstances, and that the possibility of obtaining all these advantages would probably be entirely lost by the sale of the ground in question for the erection of a large mansion, I am clearly of opinion that the opportunity offered by the Trustees of acquiring it upon reasonable terms should not be lost, although it may not be necessary to decide before 1861 upon carrying the improvement into effect, and I have accordingly to submit to your Lordships that this Board should be authorised to negotiate with the Trustees for the purchase thereof, and to make provision for the purchase-money in the Estimates of this department for the present year.

TREASURY MINUTE, dated 27 April, on the foregoing.

WRITE to the First Commissioner of Works that my Lords are pleased to authorise him to negotiate with the Trustees of the Property for the purchase thereof, subject to their Lordships' approval of the terms.

My Lords, Office of Works, &c., 14 May 1855.

BY Mr. Wilson's letter of the 27th ult., I was informed that your Lordships, having had under consideration my Report of the 20th ult., recommending the acquisition of a portion of the Bridgewater Stables, at the corner of Cleveland-square, with a view to the future continuation of Pall Mall to the Green Park, were pleased to authorise me to negotiate with the Trustees of the property in question for the purchase thereof, subject to your Lordships' approval of the terms.

I accordingly communicated with Mr. Loch, on behalf of the Trustees, upon the subject, and have been informed by him that the Trustees are willing to sell the property to this Board for the sum of 5,500*l., being 1,500*l.* less than, as I mentioned in my former Report, was stated by them to be the estimated value of it, "upon condition, that it shall not be applied to any other purpose than that with a view to which it is disposed of, viz., that when the leases of the houses in Cleveland-row expire, a few years hence, this piece of ground shall be thrown into the public street, which may then be formed in continuation of Pall Mall to the Green Park, or in case this improvement be not carried out, that it shall be optional with the Bridgewater Trustees then to require that the stables, now occupying the piece of ground, be removed, and the space thus gained be added to Cleveland-square."

Mr. Loch further stated, that as, under the Will of the late Duke of Bridgewater, his Trustees have no powers of sale, it is to be understood that the powers required to effect the sale in question shall be acquired by this Board for the Trustees in one of the Public Bills of this Department during the present session.

Mr. Pennethorne, the Architect for this Department, has reported to me that he considers the price at which the Trustees are willing to sell the property, to be fair and reasonable.

Under these circumstances, I beg leave to recommend that this Board may be authorised by your Lordships to enter into an agreement with the Trustees for the purchase of the property

* The Estimate is for 5,800*l.*, in order to cover the legal charges attending the completion of the purchase.

perty in question, at the price of 5,500 l., subject to the conditions above-mentioned, and subject to a stipulation that such agreement shall be void if the necessary funds shall not be provided by Parliament, and an Act obtained during the present or next session of Parliament, to enable the Trustees and this Board to complete the sale and purchase; and I have to request your Lordships' authority for including the purchase-money in the Estimates for this Department for the current year, still remaining to be submitted to Parliament.

It may be proper to add, that Viscount Brackley, the eldest son of the Earl of Ellesmere, has signified his wish to continue to occupy the stables, and to pay rent for the same, so that some return will be made for the outlay, pending the decision as to the carrying out the improvement on the expiration of the leases of the houses in Cleveland-row.

WINDSOR IMPROVEMENTS.

AMOUNT proposed to be Voted in the Year 1855, ending 31 March 1856, for the Payment of the Balance found to be due to the Contractor for the erection of the VICTORIA and ALBERT BRIDGES, on the final adjustment of his Account, including the Engineer's Commission.

Three Thousand Seven Hundred and Eighteen Pounds.

The annexed Papers explain the grounds upon which this Estimate is submitted to The House.

My Lords, Office of Works, &c., 7 July 1855.

I BEG leave to bring under your Lordships' consideration the subject of some outstanding balances of accounts remaining due to Messrs. Rigby, the contractors for the erection, in the year 1851, under the Windsor Town and Castle Improvement Act (11 & 12 Vict. c. 53), of the Victoria and Albert Bridges over the River Thames.

Messrs. Rigby's estimate for this work was 14,112 l., being the lowest of seven tenders, the highest of which was 26,936 l., and the average 19,400 l.; the estimate of Mr. Page, the engineer, being 18,000 l.

The tender was based on quantities, subject to excess and diminution according to the nature of the ground and other circumstances controlling the work, but the payment for which was provided for in the schedule of prices attached to the contract.

In the execution of the work it was found imperative to adopt a more durable stone than that which it was first intended should be used, as the latter could not be obtained in sufficient quantity of the quality approved by the engineer, and this alteration, an increased expense in the foundations, and an increase also in the ironwork, all contributing to the appearance and durability of the structures, have caused an addition to the contract sum.

The payments on account made to Messrs. Rigby during the progress of the work, upon certificates from the engineer, amounted to the sum of 15,559 l. 8 s. 6 d., and the further amount claimed by them, including balances of accounts for other works connected with these improvements, was 6,402 l. 8 s. 6 d.

The correctness of this charge was disputed by the engineer, and he declined to certify the account.

After some correspondence, it was agreed between this Board and Messrs. Rigby to refer the question, as to the amount due to the contractors, to Sir William Cubitt, as arbitrator.

Messrs. Rigby having, however, proposed that Mr. Page should first investigate the matter with reference to their claims, and ascertain what amount he could recommend to be paid to them, he was authorised to do so, and by a letter received from him, copy of which is annexed hereto, your Lordships will see that Messrs. Rigby have reduced their demand to 3,535 l. 7 s., which sum Mr. Page considers should be paid to them in full satisfaction and discharge of all their claims in respect of the Windsor Improvements above mentioned.

There are no funds remaining at this Board's disposal available for the purposes of the improvements in question, and I beg leave, therefore, to recommend that the accompanying Estimate should be submitted to Parliament during the present Session for the sums of 3,536 l. due to Messrs. Rigby, and of 181 l. 5 s., the balance of the engineer's charges in respect of these works.

I am, &c.

The Right Honourable (signed) William Molesworth.
The Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury.

(Copy.)

Sir, Whitehall Yard, 6 June 1855.

I BEG leave to state for the information of the Chief Commissioner that I have been in correspondence with Messrs. Rigby, contractors for the bridges and other works of the Windsor Improvements, relative to the balances of their accounts for work done in 1851, and which amounted, according to their demand, to 6,402 l. 8 s. 6 d. This amount was objected to by me, and after some correspondence between the Board and them, it was, I believe, proposed and agreed that the claim should be referred to Sir William Cubitt, as arbitrator.

Messrs. Rigby being, however, desirous that I should first fully investigate their claims with the view of adjusting such charges as I could approve, I entered upon the subject with them with the view of ascertaining if the whole matter could be settled without the delay and expense of an arbitration.

In

In the course of a careful examination and frequent conferences with them the claims which I have disallowed amount to 2,686 l. 8 s. 6 d., and Messrs. Rigby are now willing to accept, instead of the balance of 6,402 l. claimed by them, the sum of 3,716 l. in full discharge of all their claims against the Board, which sum will be further reduced to 3,535 l. 7 s. by deductions of sums properly chargeable to them as per enclosed list, which sum of 3,535 l. 7 s. I would recommend should be paid to them in full satisfaction and discharge of their claims.

It is due to Messrs. Rigby to state, that the additions to the contract sum consisted of expenses incurred in extra quantities of timber in the foundations, in the use of a better and more expensive stone (they being unable to procure a sufficient quantity of the specified stone of a quality which I could approve), and in extra ironwork, and it is principally in the latter item that they have consented to the deductions being made.

It is also right to mention that my estimate for the two bridges was 18,000 l.; that there were seven tenders given for the work, the highest of which was 26,936 l., and the average 19,400 l.; while the tender of Messrs. Rigby was only 14,112 l.; and that the value of the extra on the tender has been fully obtained by the improvement both in the appearance and the durability of the structures.

Fifteen Thousand Pounds.

The following Papers explain the object of this Vote:

(Immediate.)

Office of Committee of Privy Council for Trade,
Whitehall, 31 July 1855.

SIR,

I AM directed by the Lords of the Committee of Privy Council for Trade to acknowledge the receipt of your communication, transmitting, for their consideration, by desire of the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, copy of a letter addressed by Her Majesty's Commissioners for the Exhibition of 1851 to the Chancellor of the Exchequer, urging the importance of an application being made to Parliament in the course of the present Session for the Vote of a sum of 15,000*l.* for the erection (with the necessary fittings, &c.) of a structure of corrugated iron on the Kensington Gore Estate, adapted for the purpose of receiving and exhibiting various museums and collections connected with Science and the Arts, for which no accommodation can at present be found, and submitting drawings and specifications of the building which the Commissioners consider to be best adapted for the object in question.

Printed on p. 3.

My Lords observe that the collections to which the Commissioners more especially refer in their letter are the following:

1st. The Museum of Education, the nucleus of which is at present possessed by Her Majesty's Government, although the want of space has prevented its being exhibited or turned to any account hitherto.

2d. The

2d. The Museum of Patented Inventions, now in course of formation, under the authority of the Commissioners of Patents.

3d. The Trade Museum, of which the mineral and vegetable departments are already in the possession of the Office of Works and the Board of Trade, and exhibited to the public at Kew and the Jermyn-street Museum respectively, while the animal department of it has just been formed by the joint exertions of the Commissioners and the Society of Arts, and is at present temporarily deposited and displayed in the Society's rooms until arrangements can be made for its permanent exhibition; and,

4th. The Museum at Marlborough House, belonging to the Science and Art Department of this Board, to which more especial reference will presently be made.

As respects the Educational Museum, a subject, however, more especially within the province of the Committee of Council on Education, my Lords cannot but feel that great advantage would result from the exhibition of the articles already in the possession of the Government, combined with those which it may be expected will be added to them when a proper place for their reception is provided, and that the memorandum from the Society of Arts which is enclosed in the Commissioner's letter, and which appears to have been favourably entertained by the Lords of the Treasury, contains conclusive arguments in favour of such an exhibition.

Similar remarks apply to the collection of models of inventions formed by the Patent Commissioners, who are stated to be entirely unprovided with the means of exhibiting those models in the limited space at their disposal, while the importance of their being made available for the general use of the public is admitted on all hands.

With regard to the Animal Produce Museum, my Lords have been informed that the Society of Arts are prepared to make over to the Royal Commissioners their interest in the valuable collection that has been formed, on condition of measures being adopted for the immediate reception and arrangement of the collection, with a view to its exhibition, and its continuance as a permanent and advancing collection. Their Lordships cannot but be anxious for the adoption of such measures as may ensure the permanent exhibition to the public of this branch of a museum, another department of which is at this moment under their own immediate control.

But it is more especially in the case of the Marlborough House Museum that my Lords feel the importance of providing proper accommodation without loss of time. Not only will it be necessary in a few years' time, as pointed out in the Commissioners' letter, to make arrangements for the removal from that building of the whole of the Department of Science and Art, but even at present the portion of the house devoted to the purposes of the department has proved to be entirely inadequate to its pressing requirements; while, on the one hand, its various schools are compelled to be dispersed in different parts of the building, and in temporary erections adjoining it, instead of being contiguous to each other; on the other, the rooms are found to be very ill-suited for the purpose of exhibiting the valuable museum belonging to the department which is so highly appreciated by the public. Irrespective of the bad light and the great difficulty of maintaining a proper supervision of the articles, and their great liability to injury, the want of space has rendered it necessary to confine the purchases of articles to small specimens only, and at present the department is quite unable to exhibit many of the valuable objects possessed by it. On these grounds my Lords would see with much satisfaction the adoption of such measures as may be calculated to provide a remedy for the evils in question.

Their Lordships, taking all these circumstances into consideration, have come to the conclusion, that the adoption of the recommendations made by Her Majesty's Commissioners would be of advantage to the public service; and that it is expedient that an application should be made to Parliament in the course of the present Session for the grant of the necessary funds accordingly. It further appears to my Lords, that the structure of corrugated iron, suggested by the Commissioners, is well adapted for the purpose in question, and they have no doubt that, while it possesses all the advantages, in a pecuniary point of view, pointed out by the Commissioners, and will be found of great utility in providing for present wants, it will at all times, and for a lengthened period, prove of much service, through the facilities offered by it for the reception and accommodation of articles belonging to those various departments of the State which are more or less connected with the interests of Education, Science and Art.

I have, &c.
(signed) James Booth.

The Secretary to the Treasury,
&c. &c. &c.

Sir, Palace of Westminster, 30 June 1855.

I AM directed by Her Majesty's Commissioners for the Exhibition of 1851 to acquaint you, that since the date of the presentation of their Second Report to Her Majesty, in November 1852, they have continued to devote their attention to the best means of executing the important duties graciously intrusted to them by Her Majesty, in respect both of the preparation of the site purchased at Kensington Gore for the reception of Institutions connected with Science and the Arts, and the promotion of their general scheme itself.

Inasmuch, however, as it will be their duty, at no distant date, to submit to Her Majesty their Third Report, in which will be fully detailed the satisfactory progress which has been made in both respects since the date of their former Report, Her Majesty's Commissioners do not propose, on the present occasion, to do more than bring under your notice a subject of a more urgent nature immediately connected with the general question, to which their attention has been especially called in the course of their inquiries: they allude to the inconvenience at present sustained in consequence of the want of means of publicly exhibiting, and even of providing adequate stowage-room for many important existing Collections connected with Science and the Arts that are either the property of the State, or in respect of which the public has a more or less direct interest; and in proceeding to specify particular instances of the evil in question, they trust that Her Majesty's Government may be willing to take forthwith the necessary steps for the purpose of providing, at any rate, a partial remedy for it.

Premising that it is their desire to abstain from entering upon the wide field which the subject embraces, further than is brought under their own immediate cognizance in the discharge of their duties, Her Majesty's Commissioners would, in the first place, recall to your recollection, that a highly interesting and valuable exhibition in connexion with the purposes of education was held in the summer of last year, under the auspices of the Society of Arts, in St. Martin's Hall, London. The importance of rendering, if possible, this educational exhibition of more than a merely temporary utility, and of making it the groundwork of a similar permanent exhibition in the interests of national education, was brought under the notice of Her Majesty's Government by the Council of the Society, and that body, with the concurrence of the Lords of the Treasury, took the necessary steps to induce the various exhibitors to contribute the articles exhibited by them in order to form the nucleus of a permanent Educational Museum.

The reasons advanced by the Society in favour of the establishment of such a museum, and to which their Lordships returned an entirely favourable reply, will be found set forth in the enclosed memorandum (Appendix A.)

The appeal made to the different exhibitors proved very successful, and a considerable number of articles were presented to the Government accordingly. The Lords of the Committee of Council on Education, on the motion of the Treasury, requested Her Majesty's Commissioners to provide a place for the reception of these articles, which the Commissioners were happy to do, and they remain at present deposited at Grove House, Kensington, until the question of their eventual exhibition to the public is decided. But no means at present exist of making such an exhibition, notwithstanding the admitted importance of so doing.

A similar difficulty exists in the case of the valuable collection of models of inventions now in course of formation, under the authority of the Commissioners of Patents, through the praiseworthy and unremitting exertions of Professor Woodcroft, the superintendent of Patent Specifications. The very limited space at the disposal of those Commissioners soon became full to overflowing, and they have been under the necessity of rejecting many important contributions from the want of means of exhibiting or even receiving them. Although Her Majesty's Commissioners have offered to give every accommodation in their power in the shape of stowage-room on their premises, this in no degree meets the requirements of the case; for while, on the one hand, only a limited amount of assistance can thus be rendered; on the other, the inability to arrange, classify and exhibit the models entirely defeats the object for which this national collection is being formed.

Her Majesty's Commissioners would also refer to the case of the Trade Museum which is now in course of formation. You will be aware that, as respects the two departments of mineral and vegetable produce, the Government has, at considerable expense, and with such success, taken the necessary steps for their establishment and development in the Museum of Economic Geology and the Kew Museum respectively. But as the important department of animal produce has until now remained entirely unrepresented in this country, the Commissioners have been engaged jointly with the Society of Arts in forming the nucleus of that department, and the result of their labours is to be seen in the interesting exhibition now open at the Society of Arts. But not only does the limited space there available prevent more than a small portion of the collection already formed from being displayed, but even that space must very shortly be surrendered for the other purposes of the Society; after which no means will exist of keeping open a museum so important to the commercial and mercantile interests, and which, from its very nature, ought to be a permanent and constantly increasing one. The Council of the Society have addressed pressing representations to the Commissioners, pointing out the importance of immediate steps being taken for placing this museum on a permanent and practical basis, as has already been done in the case of the museums connected with the above-mentioned departments of Government.

The case of the Department of Science and Art, which is now temporarily located in Marlborough House by the special favour of the Crown, cannot be passed by entirely without notice on the present occasion; for not only is the available space at the disposal of the the department quite inadequate to the proper display of the valuable and constantly increasing museum attached to it, but the whole building (including the portion now devoted to the exhibition of part of the National Gallery of Paintings) must be surrendered at a period which is now rapidly approaching, in order to be prepared for the occupation of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, on his attaining the age of 18 years, in pursuance of the provisions of the Act 13 & 14 Vict. c. 78.

The Commissioners might enumerate many other instances in which the same difficulty of want of space for purposes of exhibition is felt, but they trust that they have stated enough to lead you to the conclusion to which they have found themselves compelled to come; viz., that the time has arrived when it is expedient that steps should be taken to provide for these various wants by means of the erection of a suitable structure, adapted alike for the safe deposit and the exhibition to the public of collections such as those above indicated.

Having given their best consideration to the question, the Commissioners are of opinion that an erection of corrugated iron, similar to the building of which the plans and specifications are sent herewith (Appendices B., C., D.), will be found to combine, in the greatest possible degree, the various elements desirable in a structure designed for such a purpose. Irrespective of its simplicity and cheapness, and the remarkable facility with which it can be constructed, it enjoys the great advantage, in a pecuniary point of view, of being designed of a material which possesses a permanent pecuniary value, to which the cost of the labour employed in its construction bears only a small proportion. While, therefore, it could, on the one hand, be at any time taken down, and re-erected, if necessary, on another site, or in another form, at a very trifling expense; it could, on the other, be resold, should circumstances render it hereafter desirable, at no great deterioration of value; while, should it be found necessary, on the contrary, to enlarge it, in consequence of additional accommodation being required, the cost of so doing would be considerably less in proportion than the original cost, inasmuch as only two of the four sides would have to be extended.

As respects the locality to be chosen for the erection of such a building as that proposed, Her Majesty's Commissioners conceive that the estate at Kensington, purchased by the joint contribution of Parliament and themselves for the express purpose of promoting the establishment of Institutions connected with Science and the Arts, presents every advantage for a purpose so entirely within the scope of the objects contemplated in that purchase; at the same time, that no cost would be incurred by the country in purchasing or renting an appropriate site.

I am accordingly directed to request that you will have the goodness to take the above-mentioned circumstances into your favourable consideration, in the hope that you may be prepared, on behalf of Her Majesty's Government, to propose to Parliament, in the course of the present Session, the outlay of the sum required for the erection on the Kensington Gore Estate of a building such as that indicated. Her Majesty's Commissioners estimate the cost (making the necessary allowance for contingencies, but adopting the simplest and most economical form of construction) at 12,000 l.; and as it is impossible at present to estimate correctly the cost of the fittings, &c., the Commissioners assume that a sum of about 3,000 l. will have to be added under this head to the building estimate, making a total sum required of 15,000 l. (Fifteen thousand pounds).

I have, &c.

Appendix (A.)

Educational Exhibition.

A Deputation from the Council, consisting of Lord Ebrington, the Chairman, and Mr. Harry Chester, V. P., accompanied by the Secretary, had an interview with Lord John Russell on the subject of the Government taking advantage of the present collection in St. Martin's Hall, for the purpose of establishing a permanent Museum of Education; and subsequently, on the request of the Chancellor of the Exchequer that the proposal of the Society should be put into writing, the following Memorandum was drawn up and communicated to the Government:—

The extent and general character of the collections now in the Exhibition at St. Martin's Hall may be ascertained by the accompanying catalogue.

They have been got together by the Society of Arts, at a very heavy cost, and by very great exertions.

The Council has long been impressed with the conviction that, in order to maintain the Arts, Manufactures and Commerce of the United Kingdom in a condition of progressive improvement, improvement, the education of all classes of the community must be improved; and it has been thought that, while the acerbity of religious differences continued to prevent the establishment of any general system of national education, a great improvement might be effected in the means and modes of instruction, and a considerable impetus might be given to an improved public opinion on the subject of public education, by a general exhibition which should afford a comparison not only of the existing means and appliances of instruction, but also (as far as possible) of the results which they have produced in the United Kingdom and Colonies, as well as in foreign countries.

It was hoped also that for such an object the representatives of the different Associations for the promotion of public education in this country might be induced for the first time to unite; and that their union, even for this limited and specific object, might tend to remove prejudices, and to create a desire for a further and more lasting co-operation.

These expectations have been realized to a great extent. All parties have united to promote the success of the Exhibition; and its great utility has been affirmed by those most competent to judge of it.

Its defects, viz., a want of classification, and of the juxtaposition of analogous objects, are necessarily incidental to a temporary collection of multifarious articles, the property—not of the holders of the Exhibition—but of the several Governments, Boards, Associations, Schools, and individuals, scholastic and commercial, who have exhibited the objects, and who would not consent to break up their collections into fragments, difficult to be identified, and impossible to be properly watched.

These defects, however, would have no place in a permanent national museum, where all would be the property of the public, and available for the best possible arrangement.

The Council has always had in view the very great importance of establishing, on a permanent footing, an Educational Museum, open without difficulty to the visits of all inquirers.

The principal Educational Societies have already their repositories for the exhibition of articles for sale; but each Society exhibits (generally) its own articles alone, and ignores those of other Societies and of individuals unconnected with itself; and, having to a great extent a pecuniary interest in the articles which it exhibits, is not very ready to introduce competitive novelties.

The interests of education require a central depôt for the juxtaposition and comparison of the things recommended and approved by all the educational bodies, of the inventions of individuals unconnected with them, and of the material results of the different systems of instruction.

Great advantages would ensue if, from such a centre, specimens could be circulated throughout the United Kingdom; and if a systematic mode of co-operation with foreign countries could be effected.

The present Exhibition affords an admirable opportunity for the commencement of a Museum of Education. The collections at St. Martin's Hall comprise contributions from—

1. Governments, scholastic establishments, and individuals in foreign countries and the colonies.

Many of these articles have been already placed at the disposal of the Society for a permanent museum, and many more would doubtless be gratuitously applicable to the same object, if it were certainly known that such a museum would be established.

2. Public Boards and Societies for promoting education, and schools, public and private, in the United Kingdom.

Many of these are already at the Society's disposal, and it is probable that nearly all of them might be obtained gratuitously, or at a very low cost.

3. Manufacturers and vendors of books, maps and apparatus.

The whole of these would probably be available without charge. Their admission to such a museum would be the best possible advertisement of them.

Such a museum is not likely to be of a self-supporting character, and the Society of Arts has no means applicable to the maintenance of such a museum in a state of progressive efficiency.

The Society of Arts, therefore, proposes that it should hand over to the Government such portions of the present collections as are the property of the Society, and that it should use its influence to procure for the Government such of the remainder as might be desirable, on condition that the Government should provide for the due arrangement and exhibition of the collection in a permanent museum, to be kept up and added to from time to time.

If the Government should be unable to provide immediately for the due exhibition of the collection, but should be able to provide immediately for its safe custody, with a view to its being exhibited as soon as may be practicable, the Council would be willing to promote such an arrangement.

An

An early decision is necessary, because the present Exhibition must be closed at St. Martin's Hall on the 31st instant, and because the Society must immediately make communications to the owners of the articles exhibited, if it be desired that they should be placed at the Society's disposal for transfer to the Government.

The Society has reason to know that a public functionary of the United States has offered to purchase one of the largest collections in the Exhibition, and it is thought probable that similar offers may have been made to other exhibitors.

It would scarcely be creditable to this country that, when one of its Societies has brought together from all parts of the world a valuable collection of interesting and instructive objects, instead of means being found for retaining it permanently in public use, a foreign Commissioner should be allowed to purchase the collection and to transport it to the other side of the Atlantic.

By order of the Council,
